MANSFIELD, O., September 21, 1871.

The third day of the county fair was a great success. Over two thousand dollars were taken in at the gates and it is estimated that 10,000 persons were on the grounds. The roads leading to the grounds were covered with vehicles from morning till night. The day was beautiful, and the exhibition superb. The different awarding committees were hard at work all day, but owing to the dense crowd were unable to circulate freely among the stock and articles exhibited, and did not entirely complete their labors. Among the premiums awarded were: best bull, to Wm. Darling, and best herd of cattle to J. C. Lavering. The purse for the best pacing horses was won by J. R. Glenn's bay gelding Franklin 2:38. The horses Mohawk, Lady Crowder, Rocket and Scroggins are entered for the sweepstake trotting purse to-morrow, when a large crowd is anticipated, the different hotels now being filled with sporting men from all sections of the State.

About three o'clock this afternoon the roof of Mrs. James Larimer's house, on Third street, caught fire from the kitchen chimney, and before the engine, which was on the fair ground, could reach the spot, the building was totally consumed. ## CRUMBLING TAMMANY.

Arrest of the Voucher Thieves.

HANGERS-ON OF THE RING.

Numbers of the Papers Burned.

Controller Connolly Not Implicated.

Another High Official Has Fled

Matters Growing Hotter and Hotter

A New Departure to be Taken.

The Whole Ring to Resign.

NEW YORK, September 21, 1871.

NEW DEPARTURE.

There is in a very few days to be a New Departure among the Tammany leaders. The house is falling about their ears, and they want to get out before being ousted.

ALL HANDS TO RESIGN.

Mayor Hall cannot possibly allow Connolly to go on, and Connolly will not go out alone. It has, therefore, been decided, at a caucus, at which S. J. Tilden presided, that the whole ring shall resign—Mayor Hall, Comptroller Connolly, Wm. Tweed and Peter B. Sweeney.

A NEW ELECTION TO BE ORDERED.

The Governor will then order a special election for Mayor along with the general November election, and a man like Havemeyer will be elected almost without a contestant. Green is to remain Comptroller. The new officers will resume their duties on the 1st of January, when the Legislature will at once set to work and give the city a new charter. This wholesale resignation has been decided upon at the instance of the Democratic Committee, who do not see how they can save the State with the ring men in office. The ring have taken that advice, as they are anxious to wash their hands of everything and let by-gones be by-gones.

THE DEBT OF THE CITY.

The Joint Committee of Citizens and Aldermen met this afternoon. The special committee appointed to investigate the city debt accounts, report the following as a correct statement of all stocks and bonds of the city:

First, Funded or permanent debt of the city, payable from the Sinking Fund, $21,817,216; payable from taxation, $27,816,350.

Second, Temporary debt of the city, payable from assessments for opening and improving streets and boulevards, $11,824,500.

Third, Revenue bonds, $22,766,200. Total, $116,709,858; less securities held by the Commissioners, and cash in the hands of the Chamberlain, $19,422,335; net debt, $97,287,525.

THE COMMITTEE OF SEVENTY

Will probably become a permanent organization to look after the interests of the city. One case which is engaging their attention is that of a lawyer, who was a short time ago very poor, but who is now the owner of $200,000 worth of real estate, which, it is supposed, has been acquired through connection with the ring.

THE ROBBERY OF VOUCHERS—HOW IT WAS DONE, AND WHO DID IT.

The excitement began to revive last evening upon the announcement made in one of the evening papers of the city vouchers for over two millions of dollars were abstracted from the Comptroller's office one year ago, and when it became public, later in the evening, that the man who stole the vouchers from the Comptroller's office about ten days since was known, and that his arrest, which would be made to-day, would directly implicate leading city officials and exculpate Comptroller Connolly from criminality in the matter, and besides, that the abstraction of the vouchers for two millions of dollars a year since was the work of the same parties, the excitement grew to be intense, especially among the Tammany politicians and hangers-on throughout the city. An investigation now being made by Deputy Comptroller Green will cause the development of most startling facts. Evidence will be brought to light against the plunderers of the City Treasury which will be of the strongest character, and assure the speedy punishment of the guilty parties.

When it was published last evening that the thieves who took the vouchers from the Comptroller's office were known, certain parties became so anxious about the matter that they sent a woman to the newspaper officers, offering the stolen vouchers for the sum of five thousand dollars, in hopes of ascertaining the correctness of the report.

It has been ascertained that Thomas Murphy, watchman at the Comptroller's office, and Haggerty were in the Court House about the time the vouchers are supposed to have been taken. Mary Conway, the servant girl of Haggerty, swears that she has lived with Mr. and Mrs. Haggerty in the County Court House over fourteen months. She says: On Sunday morning, September 10, about seven o'clock, I went down stairs and saw Charles Balch with the door of the Comptroller's office open, he holding it back on the outside, and I saw Haggerty come out of the door with bundles of papers on his arm and bring them to his bed-room door. Where he came out is at the foot of the stairs where the glass is broken that enters the county bureau. The bundles of papers were tied either with pink tape or pink ribbon round them. I went over from the kitchen, out into the hall. In this hall Haggerty's bedroom door faced me. I saw a man with gray clothes going in there with another bundle of papers like what Haggerty had. Next I saw this man with gray clothes going down with a pillow case on his back, full, that looked as though filled with papers; looked like the bundles Haggerty had. At the same time he went down stairs Charley Balch said to him "this way." I kind of judged there was something up, and I went to look in the drawer where the pillow cases were, and I missed one of the linen cases. When I went back into the kitchen I said to Mrs. Haggerty, "What is the matter? The kitchen's all black with smoke, and the dining room's all black with smoke." She said, "Haggerty wanted these papers burned. I told him not to put them in, but he wants them burned." I went over to the range to cook some eggs for breakfast. It was full of burned papers on the top and in the bottom; there lay a bundle of papers on top that were about half burned, with a piece of pink tape around them. I put on the cover again. They were partly smothered and going out. Mrs. Haggerty had the poker, stirring up the papers on top and underneath where the ashes were. The bottom of the range was full of burning papers, and Mrs. Haggerty had the poker stirring them up so that they would burn faster. From underneath the range and from the top she took three or four pails-full of burned papers and emptied them up stairs on the attic floor in a heap of ashes.

The girl Conway has mysteriously disappeared, and all efforts to discover her whereabouts have so far proved fruitless. Mrs. Haggerty has been placed under arrest. Very few persons were aware that the arrests had been made, and accordingly when the case was called up before Justice Dowling at the Tombs only the persons interested and half a dozen reporters were present. Haggerty was very nervous and excited. He was elegantly dressed, and on his bosom sparkled three elegant diamonds. Thrown across his left arm was a light fall overcoat. He was represented by the eminent lawyer, John Graham, who, however, did not know his client, and when he was pointed out by Justice Dowling, Graham remarked, "Yes, that is the person I was sent for to defend." With this significant remark rumor subsequently coupled the names of two prominent persons. Haggerty is also under indictment conjointly with James Lynch and William Lampson, all of whom were inspectors of election, in the United States Court, on a charge of allowing about one hundred and fifty men whose names were not on the registry to vote at the last election. Haggerty was formerly a member of the old board of councilmen. He is a member of both the Blossom and American Clubs.

ANOTHER HIGH OFFICIAL WANTED.

It is reported that a warrant has been issued for the arrest of a person high in official position. Detectives are looking for him, and it is reported that he cannot be found and has fled.

EXAMINING THE ASHES.

About six o'clock this evening, during the examination of the ashes of the burnt vouchers, which lay in heaps near the janitor's room, portions of several burnt vouchers were found in a sufficiently preserved condition that the figures on them could be made out with the aid of a glass.

COUNSEL TO BE EMPLOYED BY THE CITIZENS.

The committee of seventy this afternoon resolved to ask District Attorney Garvin for permission to appear by counsel in the examination and prosecution before Judge Dowling of Haggerty, Balsh and Mrs. Haggerty, charged with stealing vouchers from the Comptroller's office, and appointed William C. Barrettas such counsel.

INCREASE IN THE DEBT.

The city debt has increased $23,913,973 since January 1, 1871.

ALL WARRANTS TO BE PAID.

Conspicuous in the offices of the Mayor and City Chamberlain is the following notice: "The Mayor will promptly countersign and the Chamberlain will promptly pay laborers and contractors all warrants whatever, and as soon as they are drawn by the finance department."

OBITUARY.

Henry C. Longenecker.

In the death of Colonel Henry C. Longenecker last week, Pennsylvania and the country at large lost a true patriot and valuable statesman, while friends and family mourn the loss of a loved and honored companion. Colonel Longenecker was born in Cumberland county, Pennsylvania, on the 17th of April, 1821. He was fitted for college at Wilbraham Academy, Massachusetts, and at the Norwich Military University of Vermont, and graduated at Lafayette College in this State. He was admitted to the bar January 20, 1843, from the office of Hon. James M. Porter. After the appointment of Mr. Porter to the Cabinet of President Tyler, the Colonel took charge of his preceptor's business until his return, giving entire satisfaction. He then transferred his residence to Lehigh county, where he was admitted to the bar January 30, 1854. Volunteering at the outbreak of the Mexican war, he served with honor in all the principal battles as Lieutenant and Adjutant. On his return he was elected District Attorney, and discharged the functions of the position with rare ability. In 1854 and 1856 he was elected delegate to the State Democratic Convention. In 1856, disliking the course of his party in the Kansas imbroglio, he joined the Republicans, with whom he has ever since labored. In 1858 he was Representative from the Sixth district to the Thirth-sixth Congress. In the rebellion he was made Colonel of the 9th Pennsylvania Infantry, and commanded a brigade in Western Virginia in 1861, and also at Antietam in 1862, with distinction. Surely of this gentleman it may be said that he filled up a half a century of usefulness and honors.—Press.

One Woman Ready.

[From the Philadelphia Press.]

On Saturday last Miss Carrie L. Burnham, accompanied by Damon Y. Kilgore, Esq., her law preceptor and legal adviser, also by the vouchers demanded by law, went before the Board of Assessors and demanded to be registered and assessed as a voter, claiming to be a citizen of the United States, and therefore entitled to the privileges and immunities of citizenship. The canvassers at first objected on account of her sex. Mr. Kilgore then read to them the law, explaining that citizenship was not confined to sex, and that women, from the foundation of our government, had been recognized as citizens, and that now, under the Constitution of the United States with its amendments, they were justly entitled to all the privileges of citizenship, equally with man. Her name was then registered, she having made the required affidavit, and she received her certificate of assessment, which she took to the office of the Receiver of Taxes, tendering therewith her fifty cents. With but little discussion Mr. Beatty received her tax and gave her a tax receipt in his own handwriting. One woman is ready for voting.

THE hotel of the French Ambassador in Berlin was decorated, till within a few weeks, with the initial N. and the arms of the Emperor Napoleon III. carved in stone on the facade. On the 28th ultimo several workmen were to be seen occupied in covering the symbols of the empire with sheets of zinc—not effacing them. Several Berlin journals ask, not unnaturally, if this procedure has been adopted in the belief that an imperial restoration is still on the cards in France.

Mr. S. L. Clemens (Mark Twain) is going to Hartford, Conn., after all. The paragraph denying the fact was without foundation.

GENERAL AND PARTICULAR.

Quite recently there was found in Westchester county, New York, the skeleton remains of one Thomas Brown, who, twenty-three years ago, was in the employ of Ephraim Jones, a shoemaker, and disappeared quite mysteriously. It was more than hinted, after the finding of the remains, that Jones, who had reached the age of three score and ten, knew how Brown came to his death, but that for good reasons he kept the matter a secret. The authorities determined upon an investigation, but pending the holding of an inquest old Mr. Jones suddenly died. It was at first supposed that his death was the result of poison, administered by his own hand, through remorse, but a post mortem examination revealed the fact that he died of heart disease, aggravated doubtless by the suspicion of murder entertained against him. It now turns out that the man Brown died of delirium tremens, and the good name of Mr. Jones has been vindicated.

A determined effort is being made to prevent the over-crowding of street cars in New York city. In the case of a conductor and driver, convicted of a violation of the law concerning cruelty to animals, judgment was suspended by the court under the belief that the defendants had not acted wilfully and maliciously, but heedlessly and without due thought or consideration. It was held that while the law does not prescribe the number of passengers to be conveyed in a single car, their own sense of what was just and proper, and the common feelings of humanity, would have taught the defendants that compelling a pair of horses to draw a car containing over seventy passengers was a most unnecessary act of cruelty. The court said farther that if in any case it should be shown that the officers of the companies sanctioned or countenanced a violation of the law, the severest penalty prescribed would be visited upon them.

Philadelphia has a woman voter. A few days since Miss Carrie L. Burnham, accompanied by her legal adviser, went before the Board of Assessors of that city and demanded to be registered and assessed as a voter, claiming to be a citizen of the United States and therefore entitled to the privileges and immunities of citizenship. The canvassers objected on account of her sex, when her adviser read the law, explaining that citizenship was not confined to sex, that from the foundation of the Government women had been recognized as citizens, and that now, under the Constitution of the United States, with its amendments, they were justly entitled to the privileges of citizenship equally with man. Her name was then registered and a certificate of assessment given her. Next she paid her taxes, and having attained a receipt for the same, is therefore ready for voting.

In Toledo, Ohio, recently, the attention of a lady was attracted to a couple of boys in the street, one of whom, seemingly addressing the other, was expressing his indignation in the most bitter terms. "You fool, you," he went on; "You cussed fool: I'm ashamed of you. You're the very darndest fool I ever did see; confound you!" The lady finally interposed to suggest the unfitness of such language toward his associate, when he replied, "Why, I wasn't talking to this boy; I was talking to my dog here. Why, don't you believe, ma'am, the cussed fool barked at that stone dog back there in that door yard. Why, blast him, I won't be followed by a dog that don't know more than that?" The lady gave up the job and retired.

In a speech made at Glasgow, recently, on the subject of civilization generally, Lord Shaftsbury told this: There was an abominable district in London he said. He selected a house, and persuaded the inmates to allow him, at some expense, to whitewash the walls, and make the place as tidy and comfortable as possible. They consented. A short time afterward he went there, and anything more begrimed than the appearance of this house, more shocking to any person caring for decency, he could not conceive. He said, "What on earth is this?" and the reply was, "Plaze your honor, the house looked so cold and uncomfortable that I sent for the sweep, and axed him to give us a few warm touches."

The exceptional mildness of the California climate in high altitudes is strikingly shown in the case of Sierra Valley, which is a basin nearly on the extreme top of the Sierra Nevada, inclosed on all sides by mountains, and being nearly or quite six thousand feet above the level of the ocean. In winter, while the snows lie to the depth of ten and twenty feet on the surrounding peaks, it seldom exceeds two or three feet in the valley. In favorable seasons, the cattle have been known to find a scant pasturage here even in mid-winter. Frost visits the valley every month in the year, and, perhaps, as often as ten or fifteen nights in every month.

The amount of arsenic in wall papers of a bright green color is greater, it seems, than has been supposed, and few persons will be prepared to learn that it frequently reaches as high as "fourteen grains to the square foot." Lighter shades of green are said to be no less poisonous, the same quantity of arsenic of copper being used, and the paler tint given by an admixture of white lead. A paper with green leaves on a white ground was found to contain no less than eight grains of arsenic to the square foot, and had caused serious illness in the family whose house it had decorated.

PERSONAL.

Relative to Mr. Seward in Paris, a correspondent writes: "On Thursday he dined with President Thiers, and the Gaulois gives the following version of the affair: 'During the evening toasts were naturally proposed, and Mr. Seward drank the health of President Thiers. The latter, who knows everything, does not know English. Mme. Thiers, Mlle. Dosne, and the other members of the governing family, were in the same fix. All tried to understand the gestures of the illustrious man of the grande Republique, to use an expression (literally 'a trick of language') now in fashion, but the effort was in vain. M. Thiers made some remarks in response, which were so meaningless that the hearers laughed.' That is a specimen of Paris journalism. The Gaulois had no idea who Mr. Seward was, or what he had done. France is the only country in the world, I venture to say, where he is not known, for not a single Paris journal announced his arrival. This, however, is nothing to the disadvantage of the distinguished statesman."

Anna Dickinson has pocketed by her lectures, since 1860, the snug little sum of $81,000, and Olive Logan, who has only been three years in the blowing business, has raked in $40,000. Who says humbug don't pay? Those two old girls are good for another half century.

Archbishop Whately once wrote to a friend: "I remember one of my parishioners at Halesworth telling me that he thought 'a person should not go to church to be made uncomfortable.' I replied that I thought so too, but whether it should be the sermon or the man's life that should be altered, so as to avoid the discomfort, must depend on whether the doctrine was right or wrong."

A private dispatch from Wm. Warfield, of Lexington, Ky., announces that Rev. R. J. Breckenridge, the well known theologian, and an avowed friend of the republic during the late struggle, is sinking slowly, but may possibly live for months.

Mr. Chase, while in Chicago, told the brief story of the gold dollar he wears in his watch guard thus: "I put that on my watch guard when I issued the first greenback, intending to keep it there till the greenback was as good as it was. I wore it for a long time, and things looked so bad that I began to despair of ever realizing my expectation. So I put it away—locked it up out of sight. After a while a change came for the better, and I took it out once more; but I begin to be afraid that I'll have to lock it up again."

The newest Western lecturer is Ida Glenwood, and to add to her audience-drawing qualities she is blind, which will itself provoke curiosity to hear her. Further, she is highly recommended by those who know her. Rev. L. W. Olney, of Fenton, Iowa, says: "I have listened to the scathing invectives of Susan B. Anthony, to the cool and resistless logic of Elizabeth Cady Stanton, and the smooth and captivating eloquence of Anna E. Dickinson, and it is no fulsome flattery to say that our blind poet, in matter and manner, stands second to none of these."

Mr. Elliott C. Cowden, the well known New York merchant residing in Paris, is quite famous in that city for the elegance and grandeur of his entertainments. His residence is the rendezvous of all distinguished American tourists, and his entree into court circles extends all over Europe.

Mrs. A. D. Richardson is going to open a stationery and book store in Chicago, where her many friends have given her a warm welcome. Advertisement.

It is stated that Joaquin Miller, the poet of the Sierras, will spend next winter in South America, where he will lay up a store of tropical impressions.

STATE POLITICS.

The State Journal of Wednesday says: James M. Weakley, Esq., Deputy Secretary of the Commonwealth, was yesterday nominated by the Republicans of Cumberland and Franklin, for State Senator of that district. Mr. Weakley is a young man of marked ability and of great personal worth, whose presence in the Senate would not fail to add credit to that body.

The Democratic newspapers of this state, or at least the few of them which notice the matter at all, call the Tammany robberies "this little Democratic unpleasantness," and the "Tammany muddle."

Hon. Wm. Butler has been unanimously nominated by the Conferences of Chester and Delaware counties as the Republican candidate for President Judge of that Judicial district.

The Media American says: The new Democrats are without an organ in Montgomery county, the editors of both the Register and Defender refusing to indorse that part of the State platform which recognizes the equality of the negro. In Delaware county the position is reversed, although it is believed the sentiment of the party is not less radical. Here the Democrat, Republican and Pilot all support the new departure, and the old Democrats have to look to the Jeffersonian for any representation of their sentiments.

ANOTHER RAILROAD LEASE.

Rumored Lease of the North Pennsylvania Railroad by the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company.

[From the Germantown Telegraph.]

A rumor is in circulation, and meets with general belief on Third street, that the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company is making the preliminary preparations and laying the foundations for leasing the North Pennsylvania Railroad. It is quite possible that some one will publish a denial of this, but I am told that the leading capitalists in the Lehigh Valley Railroad have been quietly buying up North Pennsylvania stock for the purpose and already hold a formidable amount. Under Packer's management the Lehigh Valley Company is fast becoming one of the great leading corporations of the country. It owns the new New Jersey west line railroad through to the Raritan bay, and is building lines in western New York that will give it a thorough connection with Lake Ontario. Its office is in Philadelphia, where its entire business will soon be centralized, as this is much the best financial and business point from which to direct its operations, especially as the latter necessitates large loans constantly.

THE Cincinnati Gazette says: The Sunday question has reached the Odd Fellows. A regulation of the order restricts Sunday meetings to funerals. This the German members, numbering forty thousand or more, do not like, and an attempt will be made at the meeting of the Grand Lodge at Chicago to remove the prohibition against Sunday gatherings. The change will encounter strong opposition, but will also find zealous supporters.

Conviction of Ku-Klux at Raleigh.

Sub-Committees to Visit the South

The Old Frigate Constitution.

Special Dispatch to the Commercial.

WASHINGTON, September 21, 1871.

Ku-Klux Trial at Raleigh.

The Department of Justice received a telegram today, saying that in the case of eleven men tried under the Ku-Klux bill at Raleigh for participation in the outrage, eight were convicted and three acquitted. The jury is almost entirely composed of white men. The prosecution of all under arrest will be carried forward vigorously by special counsel Lusk, appointed by the Attorney General's office.

The Ku-Klux Investigation.

The Ku-Klux Committee to-day agreed to send two Sub-Committees, of five members each, through the South. The States to be visited by one are Mississippi, Alabam and Tennessee; the other, the Carolinas, Georgia and Florida. The Sub-Committee having charge of the collection of information touching the financial condition of the Southern States, notified the Committee that they could not report in full, owing to the failure to receive responses from the South to many of their inquiries. The Committee did not think it necessary to visit Virginia, Louisiana, Texas, or Arkansas.

A Naval Relic.

The old United States frigate Constitution was towed out of Annapolis harbor to-day, on her way to Philadelphia to be repaired, so as to preserve her as a naval relic. It was seventy-four years yesterday since she was launched at Boston.

The Corean Flags.

The flags captured lately in Corea were hung in place at the Navy Department to-day.

Examinations for Midshipmen.

At the Naval Academy, Annapolis, yesterday, the first candidate for midshipman to pass a successful examination was Harry A. Slaughter, of Indiana.

THE WOMAN'S CAMPAIGN AGAINST THE SOCIAL EVIL.

The contract for the sale of a large house to the Woman's Reformatory Club was drawn to-day. Several of the leading citizens have volunteered to do such portions of the repairs of the building as are in their respective lines of business without charge, and by the first of November this industrial college for Magdalens will be in operation. Another mass meeting under the auspices of the Woman's Club will be held to-morrow night, the subject of discussion being "The Social Evil—Its Extent, Cause and Remedy."

THE WEATHER.

WAR DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF THE CHIEF SIGNAL OFFICER,
WASHINGTON, D. C., September 21, 1871, 7:30 P. M.}

The area of high barometer which was Wednesday afternoon over Wisconsin and Lake Superior has moved southwest and east into Pennsylvania and New York. The low pressure in Georgia is probably now east of Florida. North and northwesterly winds have prevailed in the Middle and Eastern States, with diminishing strength during the day; northerly winds in the Gulf States; northeast winds with cloudy weather on the immediate South Atlantic coast, and brisk southeast winds with falling barometer now prevail west of Michigan and Indiana. Clear weather is everywhere reported except on the South Atlantic coast.

PROBABILITIES.

An area of very low barometer probably exists north of Nebraska, after having apparently passed over Oregon Wednesday. A falling barometer with increasing winds from the southeast and southwest are probable Friday morning from Lakes Huron and Superior to the Missouri river; easterly winds for the lower lakes; pleasant weather in the Atlantic and Gulf States.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., September 21.—Returns show the election of 605 delegates to the Republican State Convention. Majority against Butler, 167.

STATE NEWS.

A reunion of the family of the late Robert Reynolds, Sr., was held at the homestead near New Castle, a few days ago, at which one hundred and forty members of the family, representing five generations, were present. The whole number of descendants is one hundred and eighty-nine, thirty-nine of whom are dead.

There were thirty accidents in the mines of the Lackawanna Valley during the month of August. Twenty-two deaths resulted from the casualties.

The new Catholic church in New Castle, St. Mary's, was dedicated on Sunday by Bishop Domenec.

The Beaver Argus states that there was a reunion of four relatives, at the residence of Chief Burgess M. S. Johns, of New Brighton, on the 7th inst., whose united ages aggregated 322 years, viz: Mrs. Susan Eckert, aged 84; Judge Jacob Slagle, aged 82½ years; Mrs. Mary Cummings, aged 80, and Chief Burgess Johns, aged 75½ years. The meeting was accidental, and all parties said to be in excellent health.

Another statue of Washington is to be erected in Philadelphia. The American Mechanics' Association have contracted for its erection. The base is to be of granite twelve feet high. The figures will be of polished bronze, eight feet high. Its cost will be $16,000.

Mrs. Mary Fralley died in Lancaster on Monday, aged eighty-three years. She lived to hold a great-great-grand-child in her arms, and leaves sixty grand-children and thirty-one great-grand-children.

The statue of Lincoln in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, will be unveiled to-morrow.

The Philadelphia Press says: Dr. Ellen J. Mellon, residing 2425 Callowhill street, applied to the board of canvassers to be registered and assessed as a voter of the Fifteenth ward, under the Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendments of the Constitution. The lady is supported by Mr. Van Tronk, her counsellor, who claims that she, being an unmarried lady, and therefore a person in the full legal sense of the word, is a citizen of the United States, and that by act of May 31, 1870, it is made a misdemeanor, punishable with a fine of $500 and imprisonment from one month to one year if canvassers deny to a citizen the registration asked for. We understand that this is to be made a test case, and that if the canvassers assess her she will offer her vote, but that in case registration is denied to her, she will sue the board of canvassers and bring the matter into court at once.

Nancy Roberts, a colored women of Philadelphia, was burned to death last week. She was supposed to be about 120 years old, and was born in Kent county, Delaware. She went to Philapelphia many years ago. She was a young woman at the time of the Revolutionary war, and recollected distinctly many of the incidents of that stirring period. Her faculties remained good up to the time of her death. She resided with her grandson at No. 25 Schell street, where she retired to her room at about ten o'clock on Tuesday evening, and nothing more was seen of her until being attracted by the smell of fire, the family went to her apartment and found her burned to death. It is not known how the accident occurred.

The Lancaster Express, under the head of a "Pleasant Surprise," contains the following: Clinton Himes, son of Mrs. Sarah Himes, of Salisbury township, while looking over some old deeds, recently discovered inclosed in an old deed a bond issued by the Commissioners of Lancaster county to said Sarah Himes in the sum of $600, bearing interest at the rate of "five per cent. per annum until paid," bearing date April 4, 1853. The document was presented to the Commissioners a few days since, through N. Ellmaker, Esq., attorney for Mrs. Himes; and on reference to the minutes of 1853 the record of the loan was found without difficulty. On Tuesday the Commissioners met, considered the matter, and after being fully satisfied that the bond had not been paid, of course redeemed it, which with accrued interest amounted to $1,172 80. The period covered was eighteen years, and Mrs. H. had entirely forgotten the circumstance of having loaned this money to the Commissioners.

IRON INTEREST SENSATION.

Great Discovery of Ore in Missouri—Pilot Knob Equaled.

For many years, writes a correspondent of the St. Louis Republican, iron ore has been known to exist in Camden county, Missouri, in great quantities, but the country being comparatively new and wild little interest was manifested in it. Recently, however, an extensive exploration has been quietly made, the result of which has exceeded the expectations of the most sanguine. Two gentlemen, Dr. A. Condee and Alexander Campbell, after making a thorough investigation of the country, are said to have purchased several thousand acres of what they consider to be the best of the new iron region. The lead, or belt, as it is termed, is about eight or nine miles long, on the Osage river and along what is known as Bollinger creek, a small tributary of the same. It is found in both Camden and Morgan counties, but the largest deposits are in the former. So far as at present discovered, it is found on both sides of the hills or mountains there, and passing through, or indeed forming the same, as high as fifty or sixty feet, with but about five or six feet of surface dirt. Its depth is unknown, but is supposed to extend to the base. In respect to richness the ore is said to be equal to about seventy-seven per cent. pig metal—better than the Iron Mountain ore, and about equal to that obtained at Pilot Knob. The location of this new discovery is about one hundred miles above the mouth of the Osage, and the survey line of the St. Louis and Fort Scott Railroad runs near the west end of the tract purchased by the gentlemen above mentioned.

WHEN Sheridan sent to Grant for his final instructions, he gave them in two words, "Push things." This should be the motto and practice of our friends throughout the State from now until after the election. There can be no doubt that the Democracy in this State is greatly disheartened, but neither can there be any that it is silently and sullenly massing its forces for a last desperate attempt to break through the Republican lines. Therefore "push things." Give them no time to rally or rest, or recuperate or to retrieve their blunders. Most of all—let it be seen to that the interior districts, the remote regions, the outlying places, the cross roads, are not neglected. This is of pressing importance. Our majorities in the principal towns and cities are secure enough. Keep the country people awake to the nature of the issues involved in the conflict, and to the importance of bringing into requisition every vote. In all probability the country rangers will decide the battle. Watch things and push things, therefore.

DRUGGISTS will take note that the Commissioner of Interal Revenue decides bay rum to be simply and purely a cosmetic, and in all cases liable to stamp tax under schedule C. Every package put up for sale should be stamped, and when stamped it may be sold like any other cosmetic, perfumery, medicine or medicinal preparation. In regard to stamping a barrel or a gallon of cologne water to retail from, the Commissioner holds that the law does not authorize such a practice. The law requires the stamp to be affixed to the bottle or enclosure in which the article is sold and delivered, even though the bottle or enclosure may be furnished by the purchaser.

THE OPENING RALLY.

Grand Mass Meeting at City Hall.

Speeches of Gen. T. M. Hite, Hon. Edwin H. Coates and Maj. A. M. Brown.

The first grand rally of the campaign was held last evening at City Hall. The spacious hall was well filled by an earnest and appreciative audience, and the meeting was in every sense a success. The speakers from abroad, announced for the evening, were General Thomas M. Hite, of Bardstown, Kentucky, and E. H. Coates, Esq., of Philadelphia. General Hite served with distinction for the suppression of the rebellion, and was subsequently elected to Congress from his district. He has been addressing Republicans in various parts of the State since the opening of the campaign, and is doing good service. Mr. Coates is a well known Philadelphian, an original abolitionist, and an earnest supporter of the Republican organization since its birth. He was among those who prepared public sentiment for uncompromising hostility to human bondage, and now desires to see the blessings of liberty and citizenship enjoyed by all men without distinction of race or color. He belongs to the Society of Friends, and is about fifty-five years of age. Gen. Hite, it may be remembered, was in this city on the day of the assassination of President Lincoln, and, in company with others, delivered an address from the steps of the Custom House.

THE ORGANIZATION.

At eight o'clock, C. S. Fetterman, Esq., Chairman of the Committee on Meetings, called the meeting to order and announced the following officers:

CHAIRMAN—A. M. Brown.

VICE PRESIDENTS—Hon. J. K. Moorhead, Hon. Thomas M. Howe, Gen. James S. Negley, Hon. James L. Graham, Hon. Joseph Walton, Hon. James Veech, Hon. S. A. Purviance, W. B. Hunter, James McBrier, Josiah King, Col. J. H. Stewart, John Phillips, Birmingham, Hugh S. Fleming, P. H. Laufman, John McD. Crossan, Robert Long, John B. Canfield, Lemuel Gorgins, Matthew Jones, Henry Hays, W. A. Herron, Joseph Woodwell, B. L. Fahnestock, Jos. Long, John L. Berlin, August Ammon, Withrow Douglass, Dr. A. M. Barr, James Littell, Samuel Morrow, Major Wm. Frew, James Kelly, Hon. T. J. Bigham, C. D. Brigham, Hugh Lee, W. H. Barker, Granville S. Woodson, B. F. Pulpress, Andrew Humbert.

SECRETARIES—H. H. McCormick, Joseph S. Woodwell, Frank Case, B. F. Kennedy, F. M. Magee, James W. Murray, and the reporters of the Press.

REMARKS OF MAJOR BROWN.

Major Brown, on taking the chair, congratulated the audience on the auspicious opening of the campaign. He referred to the redemption of California, which had pronounced again in favor of Republican principles. This was the "newest departure" in Democratic politics that he had heard of. Maine, too; glorious Maine, had sent her greetings all over the land, as in days of yore. [Applause.] Pennsylvania was to be the great battle ground, as she had been in days gone by. Allegheny county, which gave ten thousand majority for Lincoln, and eleven thousand for Grant, was expected to do her whole duty, give the State ticket a good old fashioned majority, and elect the county ticket throughout, from head to tail. [Applause.] He concluded by introducing the gallant Gen. Hite, from Kentucky.

SPEECH OF GEN. HITE.

Gen. Hite, on being introduced, was greeted with loud applause. He said:

Fellow-Citizens: I come to you, weary and fatigued, for the purpose of discussing for a brief period the issues of the day. Before passing on to the consideration of present topics, I must refer to some few facts antecedent to the war. [He then alluded to the institution of slavery in the South, and to the fact that it was a moral, social and political evil—an institution giving the right of representation, and withholding the right of suffrage.] By the election of Lincoln and Hamlin, in 1860, you said to the slaveholders "Thus far shalt thou go and no farther—there shall be no more slave States," The slaveholders replied: "Rather than give up our slaves and political power we'll dissolve the Union." Then came on the war, the facts and incidents of which I do not propose to speak. Towards its close, President Lincoln was assassinated, and Andrew Johnson came into power—an individual, by the way, in whom the Republican party had been badly "taken in." (Applause.) Time passed on ond the rebellion was put down. In due time came the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments. The Democrats have declared, in their conventions and in their speeches, that these amendments were secured by force and fraud, and that they must be stricken from the Constitution. They talk about a "new departure," but I fail to find in any of their platforms their willingness to abide by the fifteenth amendment, and to make it perpetual. On the other hand, delaring it obtained by force, they aim to secure its repeal. You know that, to obtain its repeal, it requires two-thirds of the Lower House of Congress, and three-foruths of the States. To obtain these is now their aim. To aid in this attempt, they are trying to obtain control of affairs in Pennsylvania. If they carry the Keystone State this fall, they will have gained one important point. It is openly declared, all through the South, and was made a special argument in the late canvass in Kentucky, when Leslie was elected Governor, that if the Democratic party gained the ascendency in the nation, they would repeal the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments, which had been enacted by force, and were therefore not binding. You cannot find any Democratic editor or speaker who has given his assent to the legality of these amendments. They are attempting, in the South, by their Ku-Klux organizations, to nullify, as far as possible, the force of these amendments, while in the North they are pretending to "accept the situation! This is the way the Democracy ratify these amendments! (Applause.) There is not a rebel in the South who does not firmly believe that these amendments will be destroyed just as soon as their party comes into power. And there is a reason why they desire this—they hope to secure the passage of a law which shall provide for the payment of the rebel war debt, and the value of all the slaves that have been emancipated. In the first place, they claim three thousand million of dollars for their slaves, and four thousand five hundred million of a war debt, making seventy-five hundred million in all. The rebel war debt is not now worth the paper it is written on, because the Republican party is opposed to its payment; but get the Democratic party again into power, and I tell you the debt will have to be paid.

But then, it is said by virtuous Democrats, that Republicans are not honest—that they will steal. Well, I don't deny that Republicans will steal sometimes, but this is no part of Republicanism. But I submit to you this, my friends, that, with all the stealing done by Republicans, you never knew one to steal so much that he took everything, and did not leave something behind for his successor. [Laughter.] You all know that the last President of the Democratic line—James Buchanan, of your own State—stole everything belonging to the Government, and did not leave a penny for those who followed. [Laughter.] And in the city of New York, you know, where the Democratic party has been in power, its leaders have actually stolen all the money they could lay their hands on, and were so in the habit of stealing that they even went to stealing the vouchers for money paid, which were not worth the paper they were written on. [Laughter and applause.]

The speaker then dwelt, in a more serious view, upon the destiny of the American people, expressing the belief that God had a special work for the people of this nation, which he would help them to perform. When He made a Republican government, He made it for the purpose of carrying out the principles of virtue and liberty; and whatever was injurious to the cause of virtue and liberty would be injurious to the Government, and whatever was beneficial to that cause would be beneficial to the nation. This rule held good during the late rebellion, which began to perpetuate and extend the institution of human slavery—an institution immoral and oppressive, and opposed to virtue and liberty—the principles upon which our Government rested. The attempt to put down the rebellion without first abolishing slavery, resulted only in a series of defeats. From the firing on Fort Sumter to the battle of Stone River we seemed to be fighting without the favor of heaven. While that fearful struggle was going on, the army of the Cumberland was pressed on all hands, and a council of war had resulted in arrangements for a retreat. This was on the 31st of December, 1862. On the 1st of January, 1863, the emancipation proclamation was signed, the slaves were set free, and the God of battles was thenceforth on our side. So long as we continue to fight for liberty and virtue we shall be successful.

The speaker concluded by contrasting Republican and Democratic principles, as involved in the present campaign, and urged, in forcible and eloquent language, the necessity for every lover of virtue and liberty to stand firmly by the men who had helped to steer the good old ship of state through the boisterous political sea of the past ten years. That ship had recently taken on a portion of her new crew in the State of Maine, had landed at the Golden Gate of the Pacific, and received fresh accessions there, and on the second Tuesday of October next she would touch the shore of Pennsylvania. Who could doubt the character of the men that the people of the Keystone State would that day send on board? Not those who would go with augurs to bore holes and let in the water—not those who would destroy any part of our glorious and free Constitution—but men who would keep the noble ship above the wave, and guide her successfully through every storm. The speaker concluded amid loud applause.

SPEECH OF MR. COATES.

After music by the band, the chairman introduced Hon. Edwin H. Coates, of Philadelphia, who spoke for upwards of an hour and a half. He said he did not know that it was particular where a man, selected to address a meeting, came from—whether from Philadelphia or Kentucky. The only thing for consideration was his principles. What is he here for? What is to be done? What are the needs of the party and has he a remedy for existing evils? These were the suggestions that were paramount in his mind. And so far as he was personally concerned, no man perhaps cared less for political excitement than himself. A natural Republican, from early boyhood, he had never had a taste for public office, and having no desire to attain such, he had never entered into any political strife, standing back and watching with great interests the movements of the men of the nation and the manner of meeting its every want and necessity. He first voted for William Henry Harrison in 1836 and from that time up to the nomination of John C. Fremont he had refrained from entering into political strife. He then explained the reason for this apathy on his part by explaining the principles of the Democratic party, and contrasting it with the old Whig party, between which he could see little difference. When the Republican party was organized, he saw for the first time in the history of the great nation, daylight. There was then bright hopes for the nation. When that party, immediately on its organization announced that it opposed the extension of slavery into the territories he knew the South would never acquiesce; that the leaders would never submit to a ruling whereby slavery would be circumscribed within certain limits. He knew that there would be trouble which would have to be settled at once and forever, and he felt assured then that that settlement would have to be wrought out by the Republican party. [Cheers.] What was the position of the Democratic party at this time? He was not here at this time to abuse that party, but he must refer to historical facts to force upon his auditors the argument he proposed. He knew that the Democratic party openly declared that slavery could not be circumscribed within certain limits and that no proscriptions with reference to its extension could be tolerated. The Democratic party asserted that a slaveholder could take his slaves wherever he pleased, whether it be in the States of the South or in the free territories.

And just here they committed a blunder, not fatal to the Democracy, but to the cause of slavery, because it had already been decided that slavery was not only contrary to the genius of our government, but also contrary to morality and virtue. He referred to the famous omnibus trial in this State, when the Courts decided, and the Supreme Court concurred, that the running of omnibuses on Sundays violated no law, human or divine, and the rights of persons could scarcely suffer thereby. What is the contest before the nation today? He answered that it was the same as when the Republican party was organized. There were two principles involved. From whence comes this anti-Republican, anti-Democratic principle that is dominant in the bosoms of the so-called Democracy. Just as all other evils come into the world, as Paul has informed us, viz: "By transgression of the law." Just so had slavery become established. He had no controversy with the Democratic party. The Repulican party has no controversy. In the nature of events no honest man can have any controversy. We cannot have a Republic without a Democracy to base the foundation upon. The fifth Chapter of Matthew tells the Democracy what they need—what is essential to sustain and prosper a nation, without which no nation will ever live and become prosperous and great, and a blessing to all of mankind as is intended by Providence. As a Republican, he was in favor of the largest amount of good for all. If we take the Declaration of Independence and crystalize its sentences and follow them correctly, we would have liberty and freedom for all, Jew and Gentile, bond and free, white and black; all would then be respected in rights and protected in their liberties. [Cheers.]

Ever since boyhood he had by reading of illustrious men endeavored to shape his course after them, because they lived in times that tried men's souls, and hence their example was worthy of imitation. He then quoted the language used on a certain occasion by Jefferson, when he said: "Can the liberties of the nation remain secure, when you have removed from the same the firm basis on which they rest, namely, the liberties which God has ordained shall be asserted in behalf of all?" The Democratic party ask if the Republican party is the advocate of slavery. The speaker had watched the Democratic party for forty years, and he had found it always in favor of the extension of slavery; it always voted in Congress to admit slave States into the Union; it always affiliated with the South, and it was always the persecutor of the negro in the North. He believed that had it not been for the Republican party the negro would not to-day have been possessed of the privilege of riding in the street cars of Philadelphia. The Democrats—every one of them voted against it, and every right and privilege the negro enjoys to-day was procured for him by the Republican party. The Democrats assert that the Republican party was organized to defend the negro. A slight examination would explode this argument, and show its utter fallacy. The Republican party never did more than it promised, but the Democrats just reversed this principle. The Republican party was organized to protect the interests of the people of the Republic. The Republican party has always looked after the right of the white man as well as the negro. The party knew that freedom and slavery were incompatible, that Northern men could not go into slave States and bring their labor in competition with unrequited slave labor. They knew they would stand no chance on such a footing and that the white men of the North could never compete with the labor of the negroes. The contest, as before stated, is the same to-day as when the Republican party was organized.

The Democrats of Philadelphia and the State assert that the party has fulfilled its mission, and that now the management of the nation's affairs can be safely handed over to the Democratic party. The speaker thought that those who had saved the ship of State were able to conduct her safely through another and still another and many more voyages, and he for one was not willing for a transfer at the present time.

To-day we are in a position to make America, if the outposts are watched, what Providence intended it to be—one of the finest nations under the sun. When the Democratic party met in Chicago and nominated General McClellan, they declared the war a failure. Their efforts to disrupt the Union were a failure, but the war, as afterwards was shown, was an entire success. The Republican party stood upon principle—the Democratic party stood upon expediency, or anything that would subserve their purposes. There is need that every Republican stand firm at his post, true as the needle to the pole, and not allow the principles of the party to be bartered away. Though impediments and obstacles may arise and be thrown in the way, the Democrats may triumph for a while, but with a free pulpit, free press, and free schools, we will be a free Republic. The Democrats hate the advocates of free schools, and especially did they hate Thaddeus Stevens, the father of free schools in the State. He desired to know if the friends of the opposition were in sympathy with the efforts making in the South to educate the colored people of that section of the land. He would like this question answered.

Who will right the injured and reward the brave?
Stretch forth your strong arms, for ye have power to save.
Throned to the vaulted heart his dread resort,
Inexorable conscience holds his court.
The still, small voice, plot of guilt alarms,
Bares his masked brow, his lifted hand disarms.
But wrapped in night, with terrors all his own,
He speaks in thunder when the deed is done,
Hear him, ye Senates! hear the truth sublime,
They who allow oppression justify the crime.

At the conclusion of Mr. Coates's address the meeting, which was a highly successful one, adjourned.

THE WORLD'S CHAMPIONSHIP.

The Results of the Four-Oared Contests in America and Canada—Who are Champions?—Sadler Champion Single Sculler, with Kelly Next Best.

The results of the present aquatic season, now about to close, at least so far as contests for the World's Championship are concerned, leaves that question in a more unsettled and unsatisfactory condition than at the close of the season of 1870, when the Paris crew met with such disastrous defeat at the hands of their brethren from the Tyne. Renforth's crew, became at once, the acknowledged champions of the world, but on their return to England local differences sprung up and Renforth withdrew and organized a new crew. A new man was supplied in his place and both crews claimed the championship, and both came over here in August last to tussle with our American crews, who aspired to the same international honor. The result of these contests have been as follows, from which it will be seen none can be termed champion:

At Lachine—Tyne crew, consisting of Renforth, Kelly, Chambers and Percy; and Paris crew, composed of Fulton, Price, Hutton and Ross—contestants. Won by consequence of an accident terminating in Renforth's death.

At Halifax—Second Tyne crew, Taylor, Winship, Bagnall and Sadler, won on the square, the Prior crew of Halifax, composed of Brown, Hays, Gray and McGrath, second.

At Saratoga—Ward crew, composed of Ellis, Gilbert, Josh and Hank Ward, won on the square, the Renforth crew, with Bright instead of Renforth, second.

At Montreal—The Barton crew, Monk, Young, Weeks and Tracey, won by the Tyne crews mistaking the buoy, and rowing four hundred yards out of the way.

At Quebec—Renforth's crew won, beating by two minutes five Quebec crews. [The Taylor-Winship crew sailed for England on the Saturday previous to this race, and of course did not take part in it.]

The above completed all of the four-oared contests for the world's championship, from which it will be observed another year at least must pass away ere the vexed question can be definitely settled.

SINGLE SCULL CHAMPIONSHIP.

With reference to the world's championship for single sculls, there can be no disputing the fact that Sadler is entitled to the belt. His successes this season have been as follows:

At Halifax—Won, with Brown of the Prior crew second.

At Saratoga—Again successful, with Kelly second.

Sadler did not enter in the race at Montreal and Kelly won, with Bagnall second, and having returned to England, did not row in the regatta at Montreal, where Kelly again won, with Chambers second and Percy third. Sadler, having beaten Kelly, the next best oarsman, is, of course, champion, with Kelly ranking second in the list. Thus the record stands at the close of the season of 1871.

Improved Hoisting Engine.

Mr. L. Campbell, a practical machinist, has invented an improved hoisting aparatus for coal mines and blast furnaces, which promises to supercede all other machinery now in use for that purpose. It is so constructed that the engine is in close proximity to the elevator—all being in one building—thus obviating the necessity of two houses, and the engineer has at all times an unobstructed view of the entire aparatus, and the engine is under his complete control by a reversing lever attached to the pair of upright engines, so that he can stop it at any required elevation. For particulars in regard to this valuable invention inquire at the machine shop of James Reese, Duquesne Works, corner of Fourth street and Duquesne Way.

Not the Same Money.

Alderman Koenig yesterday had before him Martin Horn who made an information against William Philips, charging him with larceny. It appears that Horn fell asleep in a tavern and was removed to a room for the night. During his stay he alleges that he was robbed of a watch worth $45 and twelve dollars in cash. Horn alleges that Philips was the only person who entered his room while he was slumbering, but how he knows that is not explained. The accused was arrested and brought before the Alderman, but the money found on him did not correspond with that lost by the prosecutor, and the case was dismissed.

Meeting of the Market Committee.

The Market Committee of Councils held a meeting yesterday when the matter of paying M. L. Malone the $10,000 claimed for extra work on the new Fifth Avenue Market House was discussed. A sub-committee had been appointed to examine into the matter and report. This committee reported that it had performed its duty and that in the opinion of the members $3,000 was considered sufficient to remunerate Mr. Malone for his extra work. This sum, it is said, Mr. Malone has refused to accept, and it is not improbable that the matter will yet come up for settlement in Court.

ALDERMAN MORELAND yesterday issued a warrant for the arrest of James Pearson, who is charged by B. Kronheimer with obtaining board under false pretenses.

A ROW BOAT contest between the messengers and operators of the Western Union Telegraph Company came off yesterday afternoon and was won by the latter. The prize was a purse of twenty-five dollars.

FRANCIS MILLER, charged with assault and battery for beating William Kidney, mentioned yesterday, has been held to bail for his appearance at Court.

THE alarm of fire from Box 91, at six o'clock last evening, was occasioned by a fire in a small frame house at Soho, near Moorhead's mill. No material damage was done.

JAMES EAGAN charged Michael Haney with assault and battery. Eagan's boy worked for Haney, and it seems he chastised the boy unmercifully for some alleged wrong. The father called on him for an explanation but he had none to give. The accused was arrested and held for a hearing by Alderman Neubert.

ROBERT MCAVOY, charged John McClelland, before Alderman McMasters, with assault and battery. He alleged that McClelland was helping himself to some grapes from deponents gardener's wagon when he remonstrated with him, McClelland responding by striking and abusing him. A warrant was issued.

ANN MCCORNEY appeared before Alderman O'Donnell yesterday, and made an information against Ellen Montgomery charging her with surety of the peace. Ann alleges that Ellen threatened to tear her heart out, to which proceeding she decidedly objects. A warrant was issued.

THE alarm of fire from Box 64, at four o'clock yesterday morning, was occasioned by the discovery of flames issuing from a two-story brick tenement house on Mulberry alley, near Twenty-eighth street. The building is owned and occupied by John Riley, and is insured for $500. The damage done was trifling.

WE were pleased, yesterday, to grasp by the hand Mr. James S. Patterson, Mayor's Clerk, who has returned from his jaunt East, much improved in health. Mr. Coyle, who has been discharging the duties of clerk during the absence of Mr. Patterson has therefore been relieved.

A. B. MCGILL, the drover who was found drunk and asleep with $1,240 on his person on Wednesday night, was fined and discharged yesterday, but before eleven o'clock, was hauled to the lock-up in a wagon, insensibly drunk. This time he had $1,219 on his person. He had a hearing at four o'clock, paid another fine and was released.

A MILITARY convention will be held at Harrisburg on the 3d prox., to take into consideration needed reforms in the militia system of the State. The ratio of representation is based upon one delegate to every two hundred enlisted men. A good plan for the support of the military will be devised and submitted to the next Legislature for action.

ON Wednesday night a crowd of ruffians took passage upon the second McKeesport accommodation train, Connellsville railroad, and during the absence of the conductor from the car conducted themselves in a most outrageous manner. Order was finally demanded by the decent passengers, and after a while the demand was complied with. An effort should be made to ascertain the names of the roughs that information might be made against them. We feel confident Mayor Brush would deal in a summary manner with such offenders.

MATTHEW SCHADLER and three others went into the saloon of Henry Kichlinger, on Second avenue, yesterday, and procured drinks. A difficulty occurred in reference to the change, Schadler claiming that there was five cents due him, and Kichlinger denying the assertion. Finally the saloon keeper, as is alleged, came from behind the counter and wantonly abused the defendant. He was arrested and committed to jail.

COURT PROCEEDINGS.

Criminal Court, Judge Sterrett—General A. L. Pearson, District Attorney.

TRIAL OF PATRICK BARRY FOR THE MURDER OF HIS WIFE.

At the conclusion of the testimony for the prosecution in this case, E. A. Montooth, Esq., opened for

THE DEFENSE,

Stating to the jury that they would prove the prisoner of unsound mind, and consequently not responsible for the crime with which he stood charged.

Jerry White, son-in-law of the prisoner, was first examined. His testimony was to the effect that Barry had been partially paralyzed previous to the murder; that he had frequently exhibited signs of mental aberration, such as showing pieces of paper and asking if they were money; doing things, while at work, which were entirely different from what he had been told to do; that he wanted to whip the witness, two or three times, for having his money, and immediately after would be as friendly as if nothing had occurred between them, etc. The witness, from what he had seen, believed Barry to be insane.

Richard Perry had seen Barry act strangely before the murder, talking at random, talking to himself, throwing his cane up, etc. Thought he was not in his right mind.

Thomas Kernan believed, from the conduct of the prisoner before the murder, that his mind was very much disturbed. Had visited him in jail, but discovered nothing wrong with him there.

TESTIMONY OF PHYSICIANS.

Dr. McCord was recalled, and stated that while Barry's sickness had a tendency to disturb his mind, yet he (witness) would regard him as sane. Talked with him in jail ten days ago, and in justification of his act he said his wife had treated him badly—that she was a "sore woman" and did not give him enough to eat. He seemed to understand what he was talking about, and to comprehend the nature of his crime. In a word, witness thought Barry fully able to understand the difference between right and wrong. When asked about the hatchet with which the murder had been committed, he evaded answering. The Doctor had been Barry's medical attendant for about two years and a half, and had seen him on an average once every two or three months.

THE PRISONER'S CONVERSATION WITH DR. POLLOCK.

Dr. A. M. Pollock testified that he saw the prisoner in jail, having gone there at the request of the jail physician, Dr. McKelvy. He had a lengthy conversation with Barry, during which he made substantially the following statement: That he left his wife and family in Ireland because he had not money enough to bring them; that he heard an evil report about his wife there; that he had sent money for his daughter, but it had been misappropriated; that his son went into the army and got killed, and he subsequently got considerable money from the government; his wife then came over, and they lived together; that he placed the money in her hands, and it was put into bank; that he was informed, that not being a citizen, he could not place it in bank himself; that he was saving the money to start a store with; when he asked his wife for money she said she had none; that disturbed him much; he asked her a second time for money and she said she had none; money which he got for his work she took from his pocket; this made him despondent: he got pain in the head and was unable to work; he then quit work in the mill, and obtained employment on the street railway; he was so stupid that the men jeered him, and he quit work; from this up to the time the crime was committed, he went to bed before his wife; on the morning of the killing he waked up and found his wife by his side; he got up, saw a hatchet, picked it up and struck her once or twice; he said he could not resist striking her; if he had known as much then as now, he would not have done it; he thought that the only reason why he did it was that he was vexed about the money and could not resist doing what he did; that he never had a plan to kill her; such a thought never entered his mind. The doctor went on to state that Barry told him a connected story, almost as he had repeated it. The conclusion which Dr. Pollock arrived at was, that although Barry's mind was affected—was stupid and dull—he was not insane. Though somewhat imbecile, he was sane.

NOT CLEARLY INSANE.

Dr. McKelvy, jail physician, gave the opinion that Barry was of weak mind, but not insane.

Dr. T. J. Gallaher had seen Barry twice in jail and had examined into his mental condition. If he was insane at all, his insanity was of the impulsive kind. The doctor explained that, by impulsive insanity, was meant that kind of mental disturbance which—while the subject might have a clear knowledge of right and wrong—overpowered the will and rendered it impossible to resist the commission of crime. A man might be perfectly sane, so far as his appearance and conduct indicated, and yet subject to paroxysms of insanity in which he would commit illegal acts, the will being powerless to restrain him. Such a man would not be responsible for acts so committed. He was not prepared to say, however, that Barry was clearly insane.

Dr. Daily had also visited Barry in the jail, but could not regard him as an insane man.

CONDUCT INDICATING INSANITY.

Other witnesses were called for the defense, and testified to the peculiar conduct of the prisoner immediately preceding the murder—such as walking about at one time with a heavy overcoat on, and next day appearing on the street in his bare feet; gathering up the shovels with which the men would be working, and locking them up in the "stock-house" before the men were done with them, etc. These witnesses expressed the opinion that the prisoner was insane, or not in his right mind.

The defense then rested their case.

REBUTTING TESTIMONY.

Mrs. White, a daughter of the prisoner, (who had been subpœned for the defense) was then called for the prosecution. She testified that she had a brother killed in the army, and her father got some three hundred dollars or more from the Government; this money was given to her mother and put in bank, as her mother was manager; she did not know what became of this money; she did not hear her father say anything about the money until after he was sick; had heard her mother regret that the money had been spent, but never heard her say how she had spent it; after her father got sick he talked about the money repeatedly.

'Squire Barker was then recalled, and testified that from the remarks and actions of the prisoner, on the evening before, and the morning after the murder, he should regard him as a sane man.

Wm. Reed, inside turnkey of the jail, had seen Barry every day since his imprisonment; had talked with him frequently, and never found him to wander from the subject talked of. Never saw any indication of insanity until within four or five days past; he had not acted just the same within that time.

Wm. Scandrett, jail warden, testified that the prisoner always answered questions promptly and directly, until within about a week ago, when he did not seem to understand what was said. Within the past ten days, Barry had had a spiritual adviser.

The prosecution then finally rested their case.

NO ARGUMENT.

The counsel for the Commonwealth and the prisoner then held a consultation, after which it was announced that they had agreed to submit the case without argument, inasmuch as the verdict would turn upon the naked questions of law as laid down by the Court.

CHARGE OF THE COURT.

Judge Sterrett then proceeded to deliver the charge to the jury. Under the indictment the jury could find one of three verdicts—murder of the first degree, murder of the second degree, or manslaughter—if the testimony warranted a conviction at all. After defining murder at common law, and under the statute, he went on to say that murder of the first degree must be willful, deliberate and premeditated, with a specific intent to take life: murder of the second degree is when the party does not intend to kill but to inflict great bodily harm, and manslaughter consists in killing in the heat of blood, or in a transport of passion, upon adequate provocation—this latter form of homicide, out of regard for the frailties of human nature, not being held under the law as malicious. In this case the defense allege that the prisoner was not sane at the time the offense was committed. The test of general insanity was that it must totally destroy his perceptions of right and wrong, before it can be considered as a defense against crime. Whether the insanity be general or partial, the degree of it must be such as to control the will of the subject, and take from him the freedom of moral action. Impulsive insanity was another species, recognized by the law, and this was where the will was completely overpowered, and the subject impelled by some unknown and unseen power. The doctrine which acknowledged this mania was of a dangerous tendency, according to Chief Justice Gibson, and should be confined to the clearest cases. The jury should inquire whether the insanity, if any, was general or partial, or whether it was of the impulsive kind. To establish either degree of insanity the proof must be clear. Was there such general insanity as would shield him from the consequences of his act? or such insanity, of a particular nature, as would render him irresponsible? Impulsive insanity must not be confounded with that spirit of malice and hatred which prompts to the commission of crime. Where crime is prompted by a malicious heart and does not result from an overpowering of the will—an irresistable inclination to do the wrongful act—the party would be legally responsible. If the prisoner was harboring resentment towards his wife, on account of her withholding the money referred to, and prompted by his malicious feeling, killed her, he would be responsible for his act. If he was impelled by some unnatural and hidden impulse, which he could not resist, he would be excusable. The law presumed every man to be sane, and when insanity was set up as a defense it must be proved to the satisfaction of the jury. If there was a reasonable doubt as to the sanity of the prisoner, he should be acquitted.

The jury retired at four o'clock to deliberate upon a verdict, and the court took a recess for one hour.

THE VERDICT.

At five o'clock the jury were not ready to come into Court, and a further recess was taken until eight. At that hour Court was opened, and soon after the jury entered. The prisoner was brought from the jail and placed in the box. He wore the same air of carelessness as had marked his conduct throughout the trial. The indictment, with the indorsement of the jury was handed to Clerk Murphy, by the foreman, Mr. Graham, who presented it to Judge Sterrett. His Honor noted the finding and then returned the document to the Clerk, who, addressing the prisoner, told him to stand up. Barry did not, or pretended not to hear the words of the Clerk, when a tipstaff repeated the words of Major Murphy—"stand up." The old man slowly arose from his seat and looked upon the jury without manifesting the least concern as to whether he was consigned to the gallows or the penitentiary.

"Gentlemen of the Jury, have you agreed upon a verdict?" asked Major Murphy. "We have," answered the jurymen in a chorus. "Who shall speak for you?" inquired Mr. Murphy. "Our foreman," replied the jurymen. "What is that verdict?" asked the Major. "Not guilty, by reason of insanity," answered Mr. Graham.

Judge Sterrett then wrote the verdict upon the Court record, after which the clerk read it to the jurymen, who reiterated their approval of the verdict and the manner in which the Court had recorded it. As is usual in such cases, the prisoner was remanded for future disposition, and the Court adjourned.

Has He a Wife Here?

The New York Sun refers to the arrest and committal of John Kelly, alias Nelson, alias Christie, alias Devere, a traveling minstrel, on a charge of bigamy. While sojourning in the cities where he performed, he, it is said, managed to get into the good graces of servant girls having any bank books, and, as the result thereof, the Sun accuses him of having two or three wives in Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago, St. Louis and other cities. Two have turned up in New York, and sympathizing with each other, conspired to send him to Sing Sing. One of these women he married in 1869 and the other in 1870, abandoning each as soon as he gained possession of what money she had. Has he a wife here? is the question asked, and who is she? Kelly freely admitted the bigamy, and remarked, "I'm up at last." On being asked what his business was, he answered, "A theatrical performer." "And a matrimonial performer," added Mr. Goldey, the clerk.

Alleged Felonious Shooting.

Daniel Lavelty, of Allegeny, appeared as prosecutor in a case before Alderman Strain yesterday, Dr. Ed. Czarnecki, veterinary surgeon, of Allegheny, being defendant. Deponent and some companions were standing on the street corner near Czarnecki's premises Wednesday night, talking, but making no disturbance. The defendant came out and ordered them to leave at once, but they refused, when he ran into the house and fired a pistol at the crowd from one of the upper windows, but the ball did not hit any of them. Officer Timmony arrested the accused who was held in $500 bail for his appearance at Court to answer.

WE UNDERSTAND that fifteen hundred tickets have already been given out for the grand free excursion to Letonia next Monday to parties who intend making purchases at the big sale of lots that is to come off there on that day. From this, it would appear that Monday's excursion will even excel that of the two excursions to Letonia during the past summer. Mr. G. Stoy, of 166 Fourth avenue, has the excursion in charge.

SOUTH SIDE.

ITEMS IN BRIEF.

THE schools of Birmingham will open on the 1st Monday of October.

POSTMASTER HOERR has returned from an extended tour to Elizabeth. He looks hale and hearty.

BUILDING improvements along the line of the Birmingham passenger railway greatly interfere with the schedule of the cars, and frequently they are detained for half an hour.

M. GOFF brought suit before Justice Salisbury yesterday charging Charles Gray with obtaining groceries by false pretense. The accused was arrested and held for a hearing.

THE funeral of Michael Keenan, drowned in the Monongahela on Saturday last, took place yesterday afternoon, from Ormsby borough, and was very largely attended.

MARY RENSHAW made oath before Justice Heisel yesterday, charging her husband, James, with assault and battery, alleging that he knocked her down, kicked her severely and drove her from the house, at night. A warrant was issued.

THE School Directors of Birmingham held a meeting yesterday afternoon and elected Miss Lizzie Mueller, of Allegheny, teacher of the German and English in the schools of the borough. The lady has excellent certificates and is said to be well qualified for the position.

CHARLES FECHE was sued before Justice Krehan yesterday by his wife, who accused him of failing to contribute to her support. She alleged that her husband does nothing but sit listless about the house, and that she is compelled to provide means of sustenance for herself. The accused was arrested and locked up and will be sent to jail to await the action of the Court.

CHARLES FECKE, alluded to elsewhere, is the same individual, who a few months ago, traveled back and forth, continually, upon the cars of the Birmingham Passenger Railway, with a hatchet under his coat. He is a shoemaker by occupation and is thought to be demented. The Court will likely inquire into his mental condition.

BURGESS JONES, of East Birmingham, has rendered his decision in the cases of the butchers of that borough, charged with maintaining nuisances in the shape of filthy slaughter-houses, which requires them to give bail for their appearance at court. One of the butchers has also been held to answer for surety of the peace, for using threatening language to the prosecutor in the slaughter-house case.

ON Friday evening, September 29th, the new Birmingham School-house, between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets, will be thrown open for the inspection of the public and formally dedicatad. The new building is a model of comfort and elegance, and cost $52,000. It will be large enough to accommodate all the children of the borough, upwards of one thousand.

Aggravated Assault and Battery.

Mary Robinson made information before Justice Salisbury, yesterday, charging Samuel Craig with aggravated assault and battery. The information sets forth that the defendant committed an unjustifiable assault upon "Blinker" McClintock, deponent's son, by striking him in the mouth with a weight. It seems that the young man was in Craig's store, and as is alleged, used some language not altogether proper, when Craig seized the weight and hurled it at him. The missile struck him in the mouth, cutting him and knocking out several teeth. A warrant was issued for the arrest of the accused.

HEREWITH is printed a communication from "Tax-Payer" on the powers of the City Councils relative to the proposed new Water Works. The question the writer raises, and, it would seem, settles also, is of great importance, as it is highly necessary that every step in the business should be pursuant to law, and without any doubt. The presentation of the subject may be of service. The communication will probably arrest the attention of Councils and the community.

THE Pittsburgh Volksblatt rejects the proposition of the Post to open the Constitution in favor of foreign-born citizens aspiring to the Presidency, and reminds the Democratic organ that Germans have no fault to find with the limitation, for which it gives some very excellent reasons. The Post is furthermore reminded that German-Americans are occupied with something better than plans for getting into office, and are quite content with things as they are in this respect. If the Post threw out this as a bait to catch Germans, it was an insult to them. But was this the Post's idea? Probably the Pittsburgh Catholic feels an interest in the subject which the Volksblatt does not.

IT will be recollected that the first resolution of the Republican State platform adopted at Harrisburg last May, demanded of the Legislature the passage of an act calling a State Convention for the purpose, among other things, of abolishing and prohibiting special legislation, of securing the election of all State officers by the people, and providing for the passage of general laws for the better encouragement of industrial enterprises in the State. In accordance with the request contained in this resolution, the Legislature passed an act, submitting the question of calling a Convention to the people at the ensuing election. The subject, being entirely of a non-partisan character, upon which the sense of the people should be impartially taken, the Chairmen of the State Republican and Democratic Committees have united in the recommendation to all county committees to print and distribute tickets both for and against a Convention. The ticket is to be headed "Constitutional Convention," and beneath this the words "For a Convention," or "Against a Convention," and in counties in which slip tickets are used it must go upon the slip headed "State." We trust Republicans throughout the State will bear the subject in mind. It is really of great importance. Not to mention other needed changes in the organic law of the State, the necessity of so amending it as to prohibit special legislation should be apparent to all. Ohio, Illinois and some other States, have incorporated such a provision into their Constitutions, and found rich account in doing [illegible] the other hand, New York affords a pregnant example of the outcome of the system at present in vogue in Pennsylvania. Let the people declare themselves upon this matter.

NOTWITHSTANDING the encouragement which the "Temperance ticket" receives from the Pittsburgh Post, the Harrisburg Patriot and other Democratic organs throughout the State, advices from all parts of the Commonwealth report the movement as a complete failure; the genuine Temperance men refusing to have anything to do with the project, or to be made tools in the hands of Democracy for the defeat of the Republican party, under the pretense of securing the advancement of their moral principles. It is charged, indeed, upon good authority, that the Democratic State Central Committee pays for printing the politico-temperance extras issued from the Vindicator office at Harrisburg, and for their gratuitous distribution throughout the State. Whether this be true or not, it is certain that the utmost result of the movement could only be to throw the State into the hands of the Democracy; which would conduce to the success of the Temperance cause in about the same manner that the fabled election of REYNARD insured the safety of the poultry over whom he was chosen to preside. Every rational and reasonable temperance man deprecates the ill-advised, injudicious movement, and condemns the factious impracticability of its leaders. Two or three weeks ago there was danger that in one or two counties of the State it might draw off a sufficient number of votes to defeat the Republican ticket. This danger has now passed, however, and the probabilities are that, with the exception of half a dozen incurables, the votes of the Temperance men will be thrown solidly for the regular Republican nominees.

THERE seems to be a hope that the sorrowful experience through which the people of New York are now passing, may not only bring about a more rational mode of dealing with their own immediate social and political problems, but that it will also result in the inauguration of a better era in politics generally. Like the bow too highly strung, Tammany has snapped the cords of its pride and power; and in the impending destruction of the collossal iniquity which has subverted State government and dared to dream of grasping national supremacy, men are beginning to read once more the solemn lesson that the only abiding foundation on which to build for permanence is the solid granite of justice. A portion of the evils which afflict New York and other large cities probably grow out of the mistake of governing commercial communities on a partisan political system, but beyond this a higher standard of political ethics is necessary. Men should be taught that they cannot in party matters do that which they cannot in honor do in their own private affairs. Fraud and trickery are no more beneficial in public concerns than anywhere else; yet in party measures men are apt to forget their moral responsibility, and corrupt men are retained in office because their removal might imperil the success of party schemes. This is all wrong; and the demand is imperative that the great, grave questions of the time should be treated as above considerations of party needs, party influences or party motives. Every man is morally responsible for the evils which he can prevent, or aid in preventing, and does not; as also is he who commits to another his rights without moral supervision. The terrible disclosures made in New York reflect principally on the Democratic party, but they are only surface indications of a deep underlying corruption extending throughout the country. The only dependence is upon the people. They are the sufferers, and from them the remedy must come.

IT is fair to presume that the proposition of the Post to undo the action of the wise and patriotic framers of the Constitution of the United States, by engrafting upon that instrument a Sixteenth Amendment abolishing the provision limiting the office of President to native born American citizens, was not made at random or without definite aim. What this purpose is may perhaps be inferred when it is remembered that Father HECKER, a representative priest of the Roman Catholic hierarchy, said last winter, in a public lecture in Detroit, that Catholicism already ruled New York by 50,000 majority, and that it would before long dominate the whole country. When it is further considered that for a number of years past the most prominent Catholics have made no secret of the fact that they console themselves for the European losses and failures of their church, by its growing power and influence in the United States, and that these men are without exception devoted adherents of the same political creed as that which is championed by the Post, the conclusion that the proposition of that journal is made in furtherance of a design common to both, is almost inevitable.

LOOK AT IT, SOLDIERS!

To their everlasting credit be it spoken, there were thousands of honest Pennsylvania Democrats who—their patriotism being stronger than their party predilections—as soon as the first rebel gun blazed against Sumter, shouldered their muskets and wrought yeoman Republican service until the last sword flashed before Richmond, and the Appomattox apple-tree became historic. The majority of such of these as are now living will, it is to be presumed, vote on the 10th of October in the same direction in which they shot during the war. For it should be remembered that the "Lost Cause" is as dear to the hearts of Southern conspirators to-day as it was when they followed the banner of the Confederacy to battle in its behalf; and that, in spite of the utmost clemency and magnanimity of the people, as represented through the action of the people's government, they continue to adhere to their enmity; to their conviction that the war was a wanton injustice on the part of the North; to the right of secession; to the belief that emancipation was a crime; to the dream of the ultimate restoration of the negro to his former state of bondage; to the purpose of awarding complete compensation to themselves for the loss of their property, as soon as they obtain power; to the repudiation of the national debt, and as far as possible to the restoration of the fourteen States to the general condition in which they were before they took up fratricidal arms and rushed headlong on their own destruction. These are the causes that have embarrassed reconstruction, retarded their prosperity, made the Ku-Klux bill a necessity, defeated the amnesty measure, and which now threaten to make a resort to martial law necessary in certain districts. This truculence is bad enough of itself; but it is made far worse by the encouragement it receives from the Northern leaders of the Democratic party. Political exigencies render it necessary that they should pretend a present friendship for the past defenders of the Union, but it is exceedingly doubtful whether the majority do not at heart continue secretly to despise them as "vandals" and "hirelings." As illustrative of the contemptuous insolence with which themselves, and the memory of their dead comrades, are regarded by Democrats of the first water, we cite the following extracts from a letter recently received by Captain CLARK, of Forest county, Pennsylvania, in response to a communication addressed to the Secretary of the State of New York, asking if he had any records in his office from which information could be obtained respecting a certain soldier who had been missing ever since 1864:

> "John may, like some half a million good men who were sacrificed for a mess of lazy niggers, have been killed or have died in hospital. If so, how his mother must rejoice that she contributed one son to give a few negroes their freedom, and make them much more miserable than before.
> Now don't begin to cry disloyalty, copperhead, until you can show one of my statements untrue.
>
> "The State of New York has no records (nor has any State) showing what became of all the men she sent to the war, and the Secretary of State's office is not the office where military records are kept."

The precious epistle from which these passages are taken was written by the senior clerk in the State Department of New York, but its sentiments are shared as thoroughly by the twenty-five leading Democrats of Pennsylvania, who recently recorded their public protest against the new departure, and by their political confreres throughout the country, as by the writer himself. How do the men to whose heroic courage and endurance it is owing that we have a country to-day, like them? Well enough to indorse them by ballot?

BAIT WASTED.

The condition of our Democratic friends would be pitiable if it were not so ridiculous. Utterly effete, completely left behind by the advance of the nation in intelligence, the dilapidated and disjointed organization, every now and then, makes a frantic effort to convince itself and the world that the party for so many years in the ascendant, is still not only in the enjoyment of health, but really still capable of interesting mankind. As a permanent warning to the country as to what a party ought not to be apparently doomed to the immortality of a Struldbrug (see Gulliver), like those unhappy beings, "it has no remembrance of anything but what it learned and observed in its youth and middle age, and even that very imperfect." In the days of its prime, the dexterity with which its leaders, thorough aristocrats in heart and despisers of the people, contrived to lead them by the nose, was quite admirable. The wily dodges, the skilfull artifices by which the honest masses were made to trample upon their own dignity and self-respect, and to believe that they were toiling for humanity and serving God, while working assiduously in the cause of the Prince of Darkness, these might as well be lost arts, as the people have outgrown the condition in which they were effective. So also with respect to those coarse appeals for popular favor, which implied wholesale contempt for popular intelligence, appeals which as means to a great end were wont to receive the sanction even of the well informed members of the party, who confided in the wisdom of their leaders. All these arts, when practiced by the oblivious and clumsy performers of to-day, serve merely to remind us of the far away time when, as Democratic tactics, they used to produce such astonishing results.

Illustrations of these remarks, examples of the barrenness of resource and imbecility of device which characterize the party at the present day, will occur to every reader. The latest is a proposition to amend the National Constitution by an omission, which, quite certainly, never yet to any intelligent student of the instrument seemed expedient, or in any way desirable. It is impossible to suppose that the framers of the constitution for a moment doubted about the propriety of the exclusion defined in the clause, it is so manifestly reasonable to require citizenship by birthright as a qualification for the highest office in the country. We are sure that no foreigner of sense ever felt inclined seriously to grumble at the exclusiveness of an instrument which, while securing him in the enjoyment of all desirable liberties, denies him the possibility of attaining a distinction accessible to his son. How the proposed amendment is regarded by educated Germans is apparent in the following extract from the Pittsburgh Volksblatt of yesterday:

> "In the English-American press the question has lately become the subject of discussion whether it is not proper to abolish the provision in the Constitution of the United States, which requires the President to be a native born citizen. The question is, however, started by a party which calls Americanism into the lists with all its irritation and bitterness, the Catholic-Democratic party to-wit. We think it for the best in this view to let it alone. The debate is in truth a barren one. The great mass of foreign born citizens strive for something else than to place one of their number in the Presidential chair, besides it seems nothing more than right and fair that for the highest office in the Republic a man should be taken who is perfectly inured to the customs, views and feelings, the whole character of the people. But this qualification can be presupposed only in one born in the country."

In fact, the suggestion, which comes from the Pittsburgh Post, is simply one of those blunders which have come to characterize the leadership of the Democratic party. The proposal was of course designed—if not prompted by a worse motive—as a bait to allure and catch the Germans, who are perfectly indifferent to the attraction, and the only foreigners flattered or pleased by it, will be the ignorant portion of the Irish, who are already firm and devoted adherents of the Democratic party.

LAST year Chicago was offered land for a park for $2,000,000. This was considered a rather high figure. Definite action was postpond for a twelvemonth, and, on inquiry, now the enterprising Westerners are informed the price of the property has risen to $3,250,000. Three years ago Pittsburgh had the opportunity of obtaining a park practically without cost, for had the plan then presented been accepted the subsequent rise in land would, under the scheme, have cleared the city and give land for a park in itself worth a vast sum.

GENERAL BUTLER, in one of his most recent speeches put it in this characteristically modest way: "When you find a man coming out very strong against General Butler you just hunt him up carefully, and you will find that he is in some way a part of the conspiracy going on against the integrity of the Republican party."

THE New York Sun feels authorized to state that John T. Hoffman is no longer a Presidential candidate.' It would make no difference if he was.

THE NEW WATER WORKS.

The Bow in the Cloud.

To the Editor of the Pittsburgh Commercial:

In all that has been said in regard to the wisdom of involving this community in an enormous debt for the construction of new water works, which were believed by many to be entirely unnecessary, and set down by more in view of the action of the Councils themselves as no better than a job, it has always been assumed that they were provided with all the necessary legislation to enable them to erect Commissions, and borrow and expend all the moneys that might be required, and the very unquestioning confidence with which they seemed to go forward without any regard to remonstrance or any inquiry, whether the money might not be saved, was taken as the evidence that they were so armed as to feel warranted in looking upon their footing as secure.

The appearance, however, of the new volume of Pamphlet Laws of the last session reveals the extraordinary but by no means unwelcome fact that as they were without an ordinance when they hurried into the election of a Commission, so they are equally without a law either to organize a Commission or to authorize the huge undertaking upon which they have so hastily and determinedly embarked.

It turns out now that all they have to rely upon for what they have done is an act of the 15th of March last, authorizing them to purchase or appropriate lands for building sites, basins, etc., and empowering them to issue bonds to an amount not exceeding one million of dollars, without a word in regard to any such office as they have undertaken to create.

If there is anything else it does not appear in any of the volumes of the Pamphlet Laws, upon the most thorough search, and I proceed therefore to examine the question of their powers upon the hypothesis that it does not exist.

Had the Councils, then, the power, in this state of the law, to undertake the job which they have assumed? and if yea, is it competent for them to lodge the execution in the hands of a commission elected by themselves to hold for one, two, three and four years?

That they may contract for the expenditure of a million of dollars for the erection of new works costing that amount only is not disputed. Beyond that, however, they cannot go, because they are met full in the face by the provisions of the Act of 6th of April, 1850, "to limit the indebtedness of the city," which expressly provides that "it shall not be lawful for the said Councils, either directly or indirectly, or by bonds, certificates of loan, or indebtedness; or by virtue of any contract, or by any other means, or device whatever to increase the indebtedness of the said City in a sum which, added to the existing debt, shall exceed one million, one hundred and fifty thousand dollars."

But what is it they have done, or propose to do here? Why, upon the reports of Commissioners appointed by themselves and recommending a certain plan for the construction of new works, estimated by them to cost $2,294,478, or $2,039,498, exclusive of land and land damages—they formally adopt the plan and thereupon direct their committee to prepare an ordinance for carrying it into execution, or in other words, resolve to engage the city in a job which, by their own showing, and under the most favorable estimates, is to cost at least that much, and according to President Oliver possibly as much more.

Can they do this? The very statement of the question is enough to show that they cannot.

But can they dodge or evade this wholesome limitation, by expending what they have, with reference to a plan whose completion must involve this great excess upon the argument that the Legislature will enlarge their power for the asking?

They must take the law as they find it and have no right to assume that it will be changed at their will. It is enough for them that it was not intended by the law that they should spend any more money, and that if they had asked for more in the first instance they might have failed to reconcile the people to the law at all. If it should so happen, moreover, that the people should object to further legislation, then the amount so expended would be just so much money misappropriated and lost.

It is not by such chicanery that a wholesome limitation is to be evaded. It may sometimes happen that the cost of an erection may in the end exceed the most judicious and careful estimates, and there is no help for it. But if a trustee who is authorized to spend a given sum of money and no more, should set out on a plan that he knew himself would require twice the amount he was authorized to spend for its completion, there is no Court of Equity in America that would not arrest and probably dismiss him; and if the Councils here should be so ill-advised as to attempt a game like this, they will find equally, if I mistake not, that there is a power that will put a bit in their mouths that will rein them back to their haunches.

But supposing they had authority to enter upon so huge a job, the next question is by what right they undertake to hand over its execution to a commission of their own, to be composed most probably of themselves, and to continue for a period beyond their own frail tenure as Councilmen?

There is as little doubt with regard to this point as the other. Although it is not disputed that they might delegate the execution to a committee of their own bodies, or appoint an agent perhaps to superintend the work during their own term, they can create no permanent office, unless they can show such an authority in the city charter; and if they could, would be clearly incompetent by the very letter of the law to fill the place themselves. If they may do this, it would amount to a perpetuation of their own powers—which seems obviously aimed at, although it is not even to be thought of as either a proper or possible thing.

It is apparent therefore that these gentlemen, who have evidently not been inclined either to take advice or give heed to remonstrance, but have been rushing blindly on under the guidance of the feeblest leaders, without ever stopping to inquire what their powers really are, and thereby getting into all sorts of trouble, and making themselves the jests of the town, must come down from their high horses at last, table the new ordinance that Mr. Burgwin is making for them, and forego the excitement of a new election, with all the brilliant visions of place, and patronage, and jobs that have been dancing before their dazzled eyes for the last two months, until they can replenish their exhausted powers by a new draught from the golden horn at Harrisburg—which will not be, however, till their own epitaphs are written.

It will be a pity certainly that so much brain power should have been wasted in the effort to make an ordinance that would "hold water," and so many exalted hopes suddenly dashed to the ground; but happily it will not be followed by any general catastrophe like that which science says must ensue upon the sudden stoppage of this sublunary sphere. If a head or two should explode from over tension, or be burnt to a cinder by the resolution of force into fire, the world will still wag on as usual. "It is and ill wind," as the proverb says, "that blows nobody any good," and if the Councils should have occasion to mourn, the people at least will rejoice. Thank God for the omen! The city is not to perish by water (works), at least not just now.

A TAX-PAYER.

Statistics of the Whisky Business.

At the recent meeting of the Directors of the Distillers' Manufacturing Company, at Cincinnati, statistics were presented showing the amount of material used and whisky produced in the United States during the month of July last. The material used foots up 1,027,469 bushels, and the whisky produced 3,724,226 gallons, of which 526,831 gallons were manufactured in States not in the association. The total average daily production for twenty-six days was 143,239 gallons. Pennsylvania, one of the States not included in the association, is credited with consuming 42,769 bushels of grain and producing 142,127 gallons of whisky during the month. In Maine, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and New Hampshire rum made from molasses is included, but the production is reduced to bushels of corn, on the basis of three and a half gallons to the bushel, to compare with the rest. The total production of distillers included in the Association was 2,745,365 gallons, in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, New York, Missouri, Wisconsin and Kentucky, and in the same States distillers outside of the Association produced 452,023 gallons. Illinois leads all the States, having produced 1,290,130 gallons. The Distillers' Association, it is understood, favor a consolidation of the several taxes upon whisky, but whether or not the tax should be reduced remains an open question.

The Sagacity of a Horse.

[From the London Times.]

A young gentleman named Keene has been for some time a resident near Malton, and from Mr. Rutter, of Hessle Farm, he bought a hunting mare, which, on leaving Malton, he recently took with him to Whitby. On Wednesday the mare was missing from the field, and a search was instituted to no purpose. On Thursday the search was renewed, Mr. Keene and his groom going about ten miles on the Gutsborough Moors, and then to Sleights, where they heard the mare had crossed the railway the previous morning. At this point the trail was easy. The mare had taken the high road homeward, and at Saltersgate six men had tried to stop her, without avail. At Pickering she jumped a load of sticks and the railway gates, and then found herself in her old hunting country, making across Ryedale for "home." In doing so she would have to cross two rivers and a railway. Mr. Keene found her at home on Thursday night, with one shoe thrown and rather lame, but otherwise no worse for her cross-country gallop of nearly sixty miles, done in one day, for her previous owner found her on the Wednesday night standing at the gate of the field where she had grazed for the two previous years.

THE news is that Butler can't make it in the Massachusetts Republican Convention. But it may be premature. What next? The Herald says: "Wendell Phillips has arranged the programme. General Butler as an independent candidate will be proclaimed as standing upon the progressive ideas of 'Down with the Boston ring, up with labor reform! Down with the moneyed monopolies and aristocrats, and up with the laboring masses! Down with the despotism of heartless men over defenseless women, and up with the banner of women's rights! Down with the old fossilized Republican party, and up with the new liberty and equal rights' party of General Butler!' This is what we expect will be the upshot of this Butler campaign in Massachusetts."

CONCERNING trade in New York the Bulletin says: "There has been an active trade doing during the past week in all departments of the dry goods market, notwithstanding that several days were more or less generally observed as holidays by the Jewish element. The attendance of out-of-town buyers continues large and more arrivals are reported daily. The small houses have not done a very active trade as yet, as the majority of buyers have represented the larger retail houses in the interior, but the trade is improving in the near-by localities, and more small buyers are coming in. The West is more generally represented, also, and the trade is, on the whole, in a very satisfactory condition with all classes of dealers."

THE unique feature of the Buffalo Industrial Exhibition is a mammoth cheese, manufactured by S. R. Smith of Springville, Erie county, for George W. Hayward of New York City. This cheese fairly rivals the famous Cheshire cheese which was made by Elder Leland's congregation as a political testimonial to President Jefferson. The cheese weighs over 3,000 pounds; and 30,105 pounds of milk—being one day's product of 2,200 cows—were used in its manufacture. Hidden in its depth of curd is a silver case containing an order for a diamond ring worth $250. Packages of five pounds each will be sold during the exhibition, and the cheese will be divided just before Thanksgiving day.

ROBERTS BROTHERS had the first edition of Joaquin Miller's "Song of the Sierras" ready for publication weeks ago, but the demand required another edition, and yet others, before it was deemed advisable to publish. Now it is out, and 5,000 ordered in advance. About 30,000 copies of "Pink and White Tyranny" have been sold. Osgood & Co. have published "Bryant's Iliad," in a new and cheaper form, which puts the whole at the cost of one of the original volumes; the first volume of "Bryant's Odyssey," which is translated in the same simple, strong, masterly style as his "Iliad."

A Young American's Journey Around the World.

Among the first to avail of the present wonderful facilities for making a voyage around the world was a Boston gentleman, a graduate of a technological institution, who accomplished his tour and his eighteenth year at about the same time. The Traveller thus notes his journeyings: After visiting Germany during the Franco-Prussian war, Switzerland, Italy, England, &c., he left London in January last, by steamer for Alexandria. Before leaving for the East, he made a brief visit to Constantinople, returning to Alexandria by way of Athens. Starting from Alexandria he visited the pyramids from Cairo, taking steamer down the Red sea and across the Arabian sea to Bombay; thence by land across Hindostan to Hyderabad and Calcutta, from whence he went to the Himalayan mountains. He afterwards visited Madras, Ceylon, Singapore, Hong Kong and Canton, and thence to Yokohama, in Japan. From Yokohama by steamer across the Pacific ocean to San Francisco. Thence, after visiting the Yo-Semite Valley, Salt Lake City, the Mammoth Cave, and Washington, he reached home the present week, having occupied about eight months in his circuit around the earth, from Boston eastward back to Boston again. About three hundred miles of the route through Hindostan were accomplished by a bullock team, at the rate of two or three miles per hour. In this country the travelers were repeatedly attacked by robbers, and it was only the active application of their revolvers that they were able to protect themselves from robbery and murder. At Yokohama our young traveler was joined by another graduate of our Technological College, who crossed the Pacific Ocean with him, visited the Yo-Semite Valley, enjoyed a short hunting excursion on the great Laramie Plains, in the territory of Wyoming, and separated in Nebraska. On the Laramie Plains, in three days, the party shot about six thousand pounds of elk and antelope. As "through tickets" are now sold in London, for a trip round the world, that which was so great an undertaking even when Sir Joseph Banks undertook it, less than one hundred years ago, may yet become a fashionable pleasure excursion.

The Best Time to Visit California.

The first six months of the year are the best time to visit California; everything is bright and growing and from January to June there is comparatively little dust or heat. After that the drouth is parching, and the whole interior, from the Sierras to the Coast Range, become yellow and arid. For days of travel not a green spot is to be seen, for not one house in fifty has a grass plat about it, the same requiring a little irrigation and the use of a wind mill. The old fields from which the wheat has been cut in May or early June look distressingly barren in their coat of dirty yellow; all the foothills are brown or dirty gray, and over everything is dust, dust, dust. Not a drop of rain falls from May till late in October; then comes the drenching rains of autumn, and the whole plain becomes a sea of liquid mud—a little too thick for navigation and a little too thin for roads. But this passes away in a month or two; the roads harden, and only moderate showers fall, and by the middle of January the growing season is fully begun. Then everything is lovely for a while. Strawberries are abundant in March, and every kind of early fruit and vegetable most plentiful. But the heavy fruit season comes later; so, if you cannot visit the State before July and avoid the dust, then come late in August or in September and enjoy the fresh fruits. Do not, as the majority of Eastern tourists do, come in July, get all the evils and miss the comforts.

Iron Ore in Wisconsin.

Mr. Greeley, in some brief notes on Wisconsin, furnished the Tribune, says great discoveries of iron ore have recently been made, mainly in the great wilderness stretching eastward from the Menominee, and several blast furnaces have been erected, mainly on or near Green Bay, though by far the largest is located at Milwaukee. As yet, those in the northern counties use Lake Superior ore costing seven dollars per ton, and melt it with charcoal costing nine cents per bushel, making each ton of metal cost twenty-eight dollars; and, since its price in Chicago is but thirty-three dollars, the profit is small; but cheaper ores will doubtless be found and used, insuring a cheaper product and perhaps larger profits.

Over-Doctored.

Without any disrespect to the members of the medical profession, a profession honored by all thinking men, it is only just to say that they are too thick on the ground. The consequence is that the community is doctored over-much. When nature needs only the gentle stimulant and alterative, which has become famous throughout the country as a reliable medicine, under the name of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, she is not unfrequently dosed with a dozen prescriptions, all experimental, from the Pharmacopoeia. This is an evil, and proves that the practice of medicine is far from being at all times a healing art. At this period of the year, when the fall of the leaf indicates that decay has seized upon the vegetable kingdom, many harassing diseases are prevalent. Chief among these may be mentioned intermittent fever and bilious remittent. The exhalations rising from decomposing vegetation, and the heavy dews and fogs, are very apt to generate these complaints. The wisest policy is to protect the system by a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters at the commencement of the fall. Much suffering may thereby be avoided. But if the disease has already begun, its periodical visitations may readily be checked and broken up by this active, yet harmless, vegetable tonic.

But be on your guard against the charlatans who are attempting to palm off, under various names, unwholesome compounds, which they pretend to compare favorably with the great national elixir, which has long since swept more formidable opposition from the field. Bear in mind that every bottle of genuine Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is authenticated by a splendidly engraved label, and a fac simile of the sign manual of the firm. Put up in bottles only, and cannot be obtained in bulk.

FINANCE AND TRADE

THURSDAY EVENING, September 21, 1871.

The supply of money at this point is fully ample for all good demand, and no apprehension is felt of any likelihood of a close money market during the fall months. The course of our banks is very conservative, and there is no fear but there will be a steady supply of loanable means to meet the wants of their customers. Private lenders of late prefer mortgages instead of promissory notes, because such paper as finds its way on the outside market is regarded with a good deal of distrust.

Local stocks are more active. Mechanic's National sold at 96½, Exchange at 74½, M. and M. at 71½, Citizens at 71, Bank of Pittsburgh at 74, Allegheny Suspension Bridge stock at 54, Monongahela Navigation Company at 54, Allegheny Gas Company at 45, Western Insurance at 52, M. and M. Insurance at 27, National Insurance of Allegheny at 40, German Insurance at 40, and Columbia oil stock at 20.

—The New York money market is working closer, and betokens stringency. The Financial Bulletin says: In the fall of 1866 we had a condition of the money market very similar to that which now exists. Throughout the summer the rate of interest had been very low, which led to an expansion in September of over $50,000,000 in the loans, as compared with a year previous. At the middle of September the banks held over $90,000,000 of legal tenders, and the rate of interest on call loans was 4@5 ℘ cent., and continued at that rate until about the middle of October. At the beginning of October, however, currency began to flow to the West and the South, and by the middle of November the banks had lost $22,000,000 of legal tenders. Then came such a pressure on the banks that they had to send a large amount of their Clearing House certificates to the Treasury for redemption; money commanded over 7 per cent., and the Stock market was thrown into panic, with the result of a fall of 8@10 per cent. in prices. Up to the present date, the analogy in the condition of the market at the two periods is perfect; how far the resemblance may be maintained for the next few weeks remains to be seen. As the expansion is now much greater than then, and the legal tender line stands fully $25,000,000 lower, it is quite probable that the usual demand for currency from the interior, for moving the crops, will produce its effect earlier than the result of that movement was felt in 1866.

—Government bonds are lower, with a downward tendency. The currency 6s suffer most.

Messrs. Ira B. McVay & Co. report the following quotations of Government bonds in New York to-day, as furnished them by Jay Cooke & Co., their correspondents:

—The Philadelphia Ledger says: In the face of the almost daily development of some new fraud and the constant spread of railway liabilities, there is a disposition on the part of some large holders of stocks to pause and consider whether the revulsion from which there will be no immediate rally is not approaching. There are others again who believe that the present unsettled condition of the stock market will soon be over, and that there is yet another tidal-wave before the grand crisis, which is generally believed to be inevitable, sooner or later. To be profitably ready for the next rise it is necessary to buy stocks when they are down, and it is the large number of those of this feeling that sustains the market now. But for them, prices at the Philadelphia Stock Exchange would suffer as severely as they have suffered at New York within the last few days. The general market yesterday closed quoted steady.

—JAMES W. KENNEDY, Broker, No. 80 Fourth avenue, (Apollo Building), dealer in Government, State and Municipal Bonds; Railroad, Bank, Insurance and Miscellaneous Stocks. Represented daily at the New York Stock Exchange, he buys and sells stocks on a margin for the same commission and on the same terms as the New York brokers. Money to loan in sums of $500 and upwards on collateral or well indorsed promissory notes, or on mortgages on city or Allegheny county real estate.

PRODUCE AND GENERAL MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH COMMERCIAL,
THURSDAY, September 21, 1871.

REMARKS.—There is little new in the matter of prices. We have before noted the advance in flour by the mills. There seems, however, to be a wide difference in the views of sellers and buyers. The former contend that flour will go still higher, while the latter argue that the advance is the result of the operations of a "ring," and will not be permanent. Hence buyers are shy, and take no more than what meets their immediate wants, in the belief that better terms are in store for them. Grain is arriving more freely, and all good lots are being taken by the mills on arrival. The Grain Exchange was well attended this morning, but the difference in the views of sellers and buyers operated against extensive sales. One car white oats, in elevator, was sold at 44½c; one car oats, free in elevator, 44c; one car mixed wheat, free in elevator, $1 30. Corn, rye, oats and barley unchanged in price. Groceries continue active. Bacon and provisions are firm at previous quotations, and a fair trade reported. Cheese is arriving freely, and prices, though not lower, are weaker. Good fresh butter is in demand. Apples are abundant. The fruit and vegetable markets are abundantly supplied with all seasonable articles. We omit extended quotations.

PITTSBURGH WOOL MARKET.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH COMMERCIAL,
WEDNESDAY, September 21, 1871.

REMARKS—The arrivals of wool in this market continue very light, being only a few stray lots. Indeed the supply is so light that market values can scarcely be established. There has been a slight advance on tub washed. Other varieties remain as at last quotations. The following are the rulings of the market:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Common fleece | 50@52c | Combing fleece | 58@60c |
| Fine fleece | 50@56c | Tub washed wool | 60@65c |
| Unwashed wool | 30@40c | | |

WOOL MARKETS.

NEW YORK.

September 20.—The market remains without animation; there is some little demand for parcels to supply the immediate wants of manufacturers, but beyond this nothing of moment has transpired. Holders maintain full rates, and in some instances have advanced their pretensions, which has caused an almost entire cessation of the demand. There has been considerable inquiry from manufacturers, who, as a general thing, are in want of supplies, but they purchase sparingly at the enhanced values. The market closes quiet, but stocks are moderate and full rates prevail. The sales are 10,000 ℔s XX Ohio fleece, at 62c; 25,000 ℔s Kentucky combings, 57½c; 3,000 ℔s spring clip California, 41c; 3,000 ℔s Black fall do, 30c; 1,000 ℔s Texas, 45@50c; 3,000 ℔s Western Texas 34c; 2,500 ℔s extra pulled, 60c; 6,000 ℔s super lambs do 62½c; 3,000 ℔s tubbed, 73c; 25 bales Cape 40@41c; 10,000 ℔s Banda Oriental, 35½c; 3000 ℔s Russian, 37c; 30,000 ℔s unwashed fleece, and 41 bales Cape, on private terms; 12,000 ℔s Cleola, 25c, and 10,000 ℔s Mestiza, 24c, gold, in bond.—Price Current.

IRON MARKETS.

NEW YORK.

September 20.—The arrivals of Scotch Pig have been quite liberal, and prices have shaded a trifle, inducing quite an active demand—sales have been made of 1,200 tons Eglinton at $33, ex-ship—we quote Glengarnock $32 50@$35, Gartsherrie $35@35 50, and Coltness at $37@38. American is scarce and in demand at full quoted rates—100 tons No. 1 Lehigh sold at $37; and 100 do No. 2 do, $35. New rails remain quiet but steady at quoted rates. Refined bar is in usual supply, and prices are steady and firm. Swedes bar is in small stock, but the demand is light, and by the time the usual Southern demand comes, ample supplies are expected. Russia sheet in perfect condition, is in very small stock, and prices have advanced to 16 cents gold, with sales of 600 packs in Boston, and 60 packs here at this price—nearly all here is more or less damaged. Common sheets are steady at our quotations.—Price Current.

PITTSBURGH OIL TRADE.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH COMMERCIAL,
FRIDAY, September 22, 1871.

REMARKS.—The market in these parts has come to a stand still, at least, so far as relates to transactions. Buyers seem to have "departed" to other parts, their occupation for the present having departed. In regard to prices we have no change to note. We have come to the conclusion that when the bottom has been reached there will be a reaction. When that time comes, our readers shall be duly informed. As we have to wait, they will be under the necessity of doing the same.

PITTSBURGH LIVE STOCK MARKET.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH COMMERCIAL,
WEDNESDAY, September 20, 1871.

Cattle.

At the time of closing our last report we remarked that the market on the best grades of cattle was firm and prices a shade higher than those of the previous week, while the common were plenty and sold rather slow. During the latter part of the week there was no change worthy of note, common continuing to sell slowly, and quite a number were left over and sent to the Allegheny retail market. This week to this time the arrivals have been heavy and in quality are mostly medium. The market opened up rather slow, as not near the usual number of buyers were present, and although quite a number of the best lots have been bought and sent East, still a good many cattle remain unsold, and the tone seems to be weak and inclined downward. At this writing the prospect does not look very good. The following are the rates current for the different grades: Extra, 1,200 to 1,500 steers, $5 37½ to $5 50; good to prime, 1,100 to 1,200, $5 00 to 5 25; common to medium, 1,000 to 1,100, $4 25 to $4 50; bulls, stags and cows, 800 to 1,000, $2 to 3 50; stock steers, 800 to 1,000, $3 50 to $4 00.

Hogs.

At the time of closing our last report prime heavy hogs were selling readily at $5 15, about the top of the market. On Thursday and Friday the arrivals were light and good Philadelphia hogs which sold during the early part of the week for $5 00 ℘ cwt ℔s brought readily $5 50 ℘ cwt ℔s; the market having advanced very rapidly under the influence of an increased demand and diminished supply. At the time we stated that as the advance was caused by a short supply we had no doubt but when the arrivals become more free prices would recede again. Such has been the case; the arrivals this week have been heavy and of a good quality. Prices have declined a little and the best grades are selling at $5 25 per hundred pounds. A good many are changing hands and the prospect looks fair. The following are the quotations: Extra, Philadelphia, $5 15@5 25; good to prime, Philadelphia, 225 to 250 ℔s, $5@5 10; good to prime, New York, 180 to 220 ℔s, $4 50@4 90; rough to common $4 25@4 50.

Sheep.

At the time of closing last week's report the market was active and prices very good and satisfactory to sellers. Since then there has been no change worthy of note. The arrivals have been fair and about equal to the demand. In quality the offerings were good and buyers have not the trouble this week experienced in obtaining a supply of good stock. This evening the market was fairly active and sheep were selling about as fast as they arrived; most everything has changed hands and the prospect at this writing looks fair. The following are the different kinds and grades sold on this market:

Sheep.

Extra 100 to 110 ℔s, $5 25@5 37; good to prime, 85 to 90 ℔s., $4 25@5 00; decent to fair, 75 to 80 ℔s., $4 25@4 50; mean to common, 70 to 75 ℔s., $3 40 @4 00; foot rot and scalawags, by the head, $1 00 @1 50; lambs $4 75@5 00.

STOCKS.

The Stock Exchange was the scene of great excitement when the announcement of an extra sale of gold was made. There was for a short time a rush to sell stocks generally, and prices declined ⅛@1 ℘ cent. This theory was based on the report that the "bear" combination would withdraw and lock up five million greenbacks to-morrow, when gold would have to be paid for. Later in the afternoon the market became firmer and the decline was partially recovered on a rumor that the Treasury would be very easy about payments for gold, if money was stringent. The fact that Boutwell will be here to-night also caused a better feeling, especially as it was reported that he would probably order an extra purchase of bonds for Saturday. Most of the speculative shares declined during the day. At the close there was a recovery from the lowest point, and the market closed firm but dull.

Monongahela—Two feet two inches and falling.

Boats Departing This Day.

Brownsville and Geneva morning boat 8 A. M., evening 5 P. M.

THE marks last evening indicated two feet two inches and falling slowly. The weather was pleasant.

TRADE on the slackwater continues brisk. The packets have all the business they can manage.

THE spanning of the main draw of the Newport bridge has been accomplished.

A ST. LOUIS dispatch says freights per steamer to New Orleans advanced to, flour $1, pork $1 50, and pound freights 50 cents.

THE fine steamer Messenger is offered for sale at a bargain. She is in first rate condition. For further particulars inquire of Captain Wm. Dean.

AT last accounts, the Louisville packets, Buell, Franklin and Arlington, were aground on Craig's Bar and out of fuel. The Juniata is supposed to be at the same place.

BY reference to our advertising columns it will be perceived that the steamer Lorena is offered for sale by Captain S. Shuman and James Rees, Esqs. The Lorena is a good boat and can be obtained at a bargain.

THE United States mail packets on the slack water leave daily at eight A. M. and five P. M. These boats have superior accommodations, and are in charge of careful and attentive officers. For further information call on Captain A. S. Carlisle, on the wharf-boat, at the foot of Ross street.

OFFICIAL SURVEY OF THE OHIO RIVER FROM PITTSBURGH TO CAIRO.—At the request of our river friends we have published a third edition of this important table, with various improvements. It can be obtained at the COMMERCIAL office at ten cents per copy, or three copies for twenty-five cents.

THE Octavia has gone to the Missouri on an important mission, namely, to cut out the bars so as to enable the snagboats De Russy, Long and Thayer to come out of that river. While pulling out snags the water declined so much that they cannot get out without the contemplated improvement of the channel by the Octavia.

At the closing auction sale of the sunken Arthur's goods, 125 barrels of molasses sold at from 28 to 39 cents per gallon, and 9 bales cotton brought $40 per bale. The ponderous shafts and engines of the Arthur remain on board of the Submarine. They are in very good order, and will suit to build a large boat. The rest of the machinery is only fit for old iron.

THE attention of the proper authorities, including the Wharf Committee, is directed to the manner in which the wharf is being filled out from Grant to Ross streets. A little attention paid to this matter just now may save the city a big law suit after awhile. The city paid a large amount for paving the wharf from Grant to Smithfield streets, and unless the filling out process, where we have named, is stopped, the first rise of water will cover the paved part of the wharf several feet with mud, and prevent the packets from doing business.

THE Memphis Avalanche says: The last number of an Eastern pictorial, called Every Saturday, appears with illustrations of the Bluff City, as it is supposed to appear to a squint-eyed Arkansian, its mud tanks, horse stables and other beauties prominently in the foreground, and street and suburban scenes also depicted with a greater or less degree of accuracy. A Main street scene would be difficult to recognize by any life-long expert; and a row-boat scene in a storm on the Mississippi river, with a crazy-looking steamer all topsy-turvy, could only be familiar to those who took part in such a frolic, and got themselves half seas over. A picture of Barney Hughes, like one of James Speed's funny yarns, is rough.

FLAG PRESENTATION.—The Monongahela folks have been doing the "handsome" to the steamer West Virginia. From all we can learn the Greensboroans had a gay time, enjoying themselves hugely. The following are the particulars:

Capt. Donaldson and the Officers, Owners and Crew of the Steamer West Virginia: This is a gala day for the people of Greensboro. What has caused this tremendous outpouring of the people? I wonder where they will all sleep. Sir, they have assembled to witness the presentation to you, the chief representative of the steamer West Virginia, the emblem of our nationality, as a token of their esteem, and to manifest to you the deep interest they feel in the success of the enterprise you have undertaken. It is not for the purpose of perpetuating a name or to remain more glorious or potent, a monopoly which for years has ruled with a tyrant's sway the steamboating on the Monongahela river, charging such rates as they pleased and doing as they pleased, generally supporting in opulence the few, and exacting all they could from the many. I do not know whether Greensboro is classic ground or not for I am not acquainted with her ancient history, but it is nevertheless true she never had a Gallatin or a Dawson or a Nicholson. But, sir, she has a Hamilton, and she has a Crawford, she has a Hamilton and she has a Jones; she has a Williams and a Heppert; she has the Boughners and a James, a Shelby and a Ewing, a Coughanour and a host of others who are infinitely of more value to you than the ten thousand who have long since finished their work and passed into the skies. Then, sir, in presenting to you this beautiful flag the people of Greensboro and Geneva pledge to you their patronage, good will and support, and in the name of the citizens of Greensboro and Geneva and surrounding country, I present to you the American flag, with her stripes and her stars with the eagle thrown in, with its epluribus go travel on the the West Virginia and Erin go ship your freight on same.

Captain H. W. Horback responded to the presentation: Citizens of Greensboro and adjoining vicinity, in behalf of the officers and owners of the steamer West Virginia we accept of your beautiful and appropriate banner, the emblem of our country's nationality, and fondly cherish it as a souvenir of your kind remembrances of our effort to render our commercial intercourse with you harmonious and agreeable. We feel justly sensible of your appreciation of our desire to please in the carrying trade, and with a full reliance on your patronage in our individual enterprise, we hope to always retain your best wishes for our success, and pledge ourselves to stand true to you and your interests. And we return our thanks to the ladies for their presence, smiles and kind greetings, and are happy to know that in them we have true advocates and best wishes for our prosperity. And we feel sure that we will leave nothing undone to serve you in all our endeavors to please.

MANHOOD

In the Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetative powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show its baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body, too much enfeebled to give zest to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwards upon themselves.

If the patient be a female, the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety, as the first symptom in which Nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health.

Alas! increase of appetite has grown by what it fed on; the energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain; the parent's heart bleeds in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU

For Weakness, arising from excesses or early indiscretion, attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more desirable to such patients than Solitude, and nothing they more dread, for Fear of Themselves; no Repose of Manner, no Earnestness, no Speculation, but a hurried Transition from one question to another.

These symptoms, if allowed to go on—which this Medicine invariably removes—soon follow Loss of Power, Fatuity, and Epileptic Fits, in one of which the patient may expire.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients; reason had for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The Records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths by Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibition appears. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute—neither Mirth or Grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur, it is rarely articulate.

"With woeful measures wan Despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguiled."

Whilst we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of Chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

Tammany's Unpleasantness.

Police Used to Shield Criminals.

Tweed's Effort to Save His Pet.

More Requisitions Made for Money.

NEW YORK, September 21, 1871.

ONLY A HALF MILLION WANTED—SWEENY'S LIBERALITY.

Commissioner Wood, of the Department of Docks, has made a requisition on the Comptroller for $500,000, and states that unless the money is forthcoming the work of the department must cease. Sweeny has, upon his personal responsibility, provided $112,000 for the payment of the laborers in the employ of the Department of Public Parks.

TWEED'S EFFORT TO PROTECT HIS FAVORITE.

The Mail says in reference to the voucher robbery: It is strange and significant that every movement of the Comptroller to obtain evidence to convict the guilty parties has been closely watched by policemen, and the affidavit of Mary Conway shows that she had to give her evidence to Connolly under threats from influential quarters, and against at least the moral influence of the police. It looks very much as though Tweed was bound to protect his favorite, Haggerty, and as though the police force had been used to a greater or less extent to defeat the ends of justice.

The plowing contest will not be concluded till Friday. The frost this morning was heavy. The fair has been a financial success.

POLITICAL.

The Union League Club.

NEW YORK, September 21.—At a meeting of the Union League Club, held this evening, resolutions were adopted denouncing the corruption of the city government, and calling on all citizens to leave national party politics aside in their efforts to insure the honest and pure administration of city affairs. The Club declines to take any part in the present exciting affairs in the city, leaving the committee of seventy, in which they express full confidence, to look after the interests of the citizens. Plurality of the ballot box is advocated, and citizens are advised to gather in bands in every election district and see that there is no ballot-box stuffing, and that the votes cast are fairly counted.

The Anti-Ring Democracy.

The regular Democracy under whose auspices Justice Ledwith ran for Mayor last fall as an anti-ring candidate, polling 46,000 votes, are organizing for the fall campaign, and will present a ticket which, they claim, will command the confidence of the citizens. They express the belief that their delegates to the State Convention will be admitted as the genuine representatives of the New York Democracy.

The Vote on the New Constitution for Nebraska.

OMAHA, September 21.—The result of the vote for or against the new Constitution is still undetermined, but generally believed to be defeated.

Improvements in Refining Iron.

The Washington Chronicle says: There is at the present time a large number of applications pending before the Commissioner of Patents for an improved process for refining iron. The Commissioner is daily in receipt of letters from the inventors which have a bearing upon their letters of application, and what they claim an interference of other parties who have been so fortunate as to anticipate their process. The most common inventions are those which produce an improved process for removing the sulphur from iron, an ingredient which must be displaced from all that class of metal which is to be polished or turned, or otherwise the sulphur, which forms a hard particle in the iron, would prevent such finishing. The Commissioner, who goes to Ohio in a few days, will, upon his return, take up these applications and interference cases in regular order, and make a disposition of them. The fact is established to a certainty that inventors have surely made, and are making, great improvements in their inventions for refining iron and turning that metal into steel.

SOME months ago the mercantile communities of the country were considerably excited over a suit for damages brought by a St. Louis firm against a mercantile agency of that city, on the ground that its credit had been impaired by giving it a lower ratio than that to which it was properly entitled. We observe that another case, involving the same principles, has just been decided in the New York Court of Appeals, after being in Court for a number of years. The defendants had made an erroneous and injurious statement as to the plaintiff's standing and resources, afterward refusing to rectify it, although ample proofs of the high character of the house were adduced. In the lower Court exemplary damages were awarded, and the verdict is now sustained. Whilst these agencies are by no means without their uses, too much care cannot be exercised in their management, to prevent them from becoming vehicles of injustice, by false or careless reports of the means and credit of our business houses, which, except for this legal liability, would be almost absolutely at their mercy.

A POLITICIAN fresh from the field of Republican victory in California has given the Cincinnati Commercial some particulars of the causes of the result: He says that the extraordinary triumph of the Republican ticket was owing to the circumstance that the German Democratic voters deserted their party in mass, and went over to the Republican side. It would not be literally correct to say that not a single German voted the Democratic ticket; but yet it would give some idea of the amazingly small portion of the 18,000 German voters of California which went with the party on this occasion. They left the Democratic party mainly on account of the violent opposition to the German cause displayed by the Democratic leaders and the Irish Democracy during the late war with France.

THE reader of Tilton's life of Victoria Woodhull naturally wants to know what his wife thinks of it.

THE MARTYRED DEAD.

Removal of President Lincoln's Remains.

The removal last Tuesday of the remains of President Lincoln from the temporary tomb in which they have hitherto lain, to their permanent resting place in the vault under the monument just completed in Oak Ridge Cemetery, near Springfield, Illinois, reported at the time in the telegraphic columns of the COMMERCIAL, was most impressive in its features and suggestions, although there was no formal ceremony, the transfer being made by the directors of the Lincoln Monument Association. The change was made without giving public notice of the intention, and hence but a small number of persons were present. They were permitted to look upon his face once more before it was shut out forever from sight. It was slightly discolored, but the lineaments were perfectly preserved, and one would have recognized the plain, homely face of the great and good Lincoln who had ever seen it. His two sons—Willie, who died at the White House in Washington, and Eddie, who died at Springfield when an infant, and who were lowered in the tomb with him, were also removed and deposited in vaults alongside. Tad, who died a short time ago in Chicago, was also brought there and placed in his vault—there being one for each of the family. Robert Lincoln and his mother alone remain of the family of six. Robert was present as chief mourner. The remains were placed in a hearse and were driven slowly around the monument, followed by the members of the association and the citizens present. On arriving at the door of the chamber they were removed and placed in the vault, when a benediction was pronounced, and the people dispersed to their homes, to remember long after this that they witnessed the final interment of the remains of a citizen whom, when he was in their midst, they loved, and now that he is gone they honor and revere his memory and cherish his name and deeds. The monument will not be dedicated for some time yet, as it is not yet fully completed according to the design.

Death of the Oldest Printer and Editor in Pennsylvania.

The Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin of the 18th says: On Wednesday, the 14th instant, John G. Youngman, the oldest resident of Sunbury, died in that place at the advanced age of 86 years. He was the oldest editor and printer probably in Pennsylvania. In 1812 he settled in Sunbury and started a German paper called the Northumberland Republican, which was continued four years, when the name was changed to the Northumberland Post, Sunbury being considered a frontier town at that time. He continued the paper until the commencement of the canal, when, to suit the taste of the times, he changed the title to The Canal Boat, and turned it into an English publication. In 1832 the name was changed to the Workingmen's Advocate, and continued under this name until 1838, when it was enlarged and the name again changed to the Gazette, its present title.

From 1812, up to the time of his death, Mr. Youngman was connected with the Gazette printing office under the various titles which it bore. In 1840, Geo. B. Youngman, took charge of the editorial department, and in 1855 was succeed by John Youngman, the present editor.

Until within a short time before his death this venerable editor and printer continued to "work at the case." We understand that he was confined to his room but a few days before his death.

Steel Horse Shoe Nails.

The use of steel nails for horse shoes is proposed by a Canadian inventor, the metal being formed for this purpose into bars by rolls, which reduce the steel to any desired thickness, and, as steel is homogenous, the plates can be cut in any and every direction. This being the case, instead of cutting sections as when iron is used, the inventor makes strips of indefinite lengths from the steel, with the heads on both sides of the strips, and which are therefore entirely unlike the corrugated iron heretofore rolled in the ordinary horse shoe nails. This is considered quite an improvement; but though a variety of devices have from time to time been brought forward for producing a nail more perfectly adapted to insure strength and durability to the shoe than has hitherto been the case by the old hand method, it does not appear that the pointing of the nails in a superior manner is, as yet, satisfactorily accomplished by machinery.

A New Arrangement to Secure the Arsenal Grounds for a Park.

We yesterday learned of an important movement that is on foot, looking to the providing of a city park free of cost. A number of prominent gentlemen have petitioned the Government authorities, and with the greatest assurances of success, to procure the upper arsenal grounds, in Lawrenceville—those running from Butler to Penn avenues—for the purposes of a park. The arrangements will be such that the city will procure the grounds free of cost, and will have a perpetual lease of the property except when the Government should require it, which would only be in case of war. As the country does not seem to be in much danger of being involved in any "unpleasantness" for a long time to come, the city might, in case the Government concludes to give the grounds, (and the gentlemen petitioning are confident that it will,) be considered perpetual holders of the property.

ALDERMAN NEEPER had a visit yesterday from Joseph Altman, who made an information against William Euler, charging him with assault and battery. Altman alleges that Euler wantonly and maliciously trundled a wheel against him, to the serious damage of his garments. A warrant wings its usual way.

JOHN SILVERMAN yesterday appealed to Alderman Neeper and made an information against Mollie Henry, charging her with surety of the peace. The allegation is that the defendant had called the prosecutor some bad names. A warrant was issued.

Public Amusements.

FIFTH AVENUE OPERA HOUSE.—"The Flower Girls of Paris" was presented by Mrs. J. A. Oates and her company last evening, in a very creditable manner. There were a good many nice bits of music in the piece, all of which were well rendered, and well received by the audience, which was quite large. For her benefit this evening Mrs. Oates will produce the musical drama, "Daughter of the Regiment," with all the original music, and the principal gems from the "Grand Duchess." There will be an Oates matinee to-morrow.

FIFTH AVENUE.—The Fifth Avenue Opera House was comfortably filled, though not crowded, last night. "The Three Hunchbacks" was again performed excellently by the Abbott troupe, several new tricks having been introduced. The pantomime is one of the finest out, and well worth a visit. It holds the bills for the remainder of the week. The matinee to-morrow will afford the ladies and children an opportunity to enjoy a rare treat.

VARIETIES.—The new bill at this house last evening was one of the best of the season, presenting the company in their best acts. The audience was large, and the demonstrations of approval frequent and hearty. The programme for to-night is an excellent one.

THEODORE THOMAS'S CONCERTS.—It affords us unqualified pleasure to announce that Theodore Thomas will visit us with his reorganized grand orchestra in a short time, appearing at Library Hall on November 8, and remaining four nights. Mr. Thomas had a very large orchestra last season, but he has increased its proportions and brought it to a still higher degree of perfection. The organization now consists of fifty-four persons, among whom are nine distinguished soloists. In addition to the above performers, Mlle. Maria Krebs, a brilliant pianiste, has been engaged. A rich musical treat is in store for our citizens.

THE GENUINE THING.—The "Georgia Minstrels, the great American Slave Troupe," are announced to appear at Masonic Hall on the last three nights of next week. They are genuine Southern negroes, emancipated by the late war, and have no call for "burnt cork." They have recently returned from a European tour, where they are said to have achieved great success.

China and Queensware.

The attention of country dealers is directed specially to the large stock of China, queensware, glassware, silver plated ware, porcelain ware, vases, table cutlery, &c., now on hand and being received at the China store of R. E. Breed & Co., 100 Wood street.

The Modern Wonder.

We have several times referred to the modern wonder store, where goods of almost every description are sold for the small sum of one dollar for each article, some of which are worth from thirty to forty dollars. Since the removal to No. 60 Fifth avenue, the business has been even greater than it was before, and the spacious room has been crowded with purchasers daily. The sum of one dollar will purchase a fine chromo, or any other article, both useful and valuable. The mode of doing business is extremely simple, and a child can invest as well as a grown person; all have equal chances, and all customers are treated with courtesy.

Homestead Outdone.

The sale of lots which will take place on the 26th inst. on the Brereton property, on Thirty-third street, back of the Iron City Park, promises to be far in advance in point of importance to purchasers of any other sale of the season.

Two Hundred and Fifty Lots

To be sold Tuesday, the 26th, back of the Iron City Park. For convenience of access this location exceeds any other now offered for private residences. The sale will commence at 9½ o'clock A. M., and excursion trains will be run to and from the sale on the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The Property.

To be sold in lots on Tuesday, the 26th inst., on the Brereton estate, has some of the most delightful building sites in the city limits. It is convenient and easy of access from the business portion of the city.

Vases

Of every description and in great variety at the China store, No. 100 Wood street.

"Burnett's Cocoaine

For the hair, once used recommends itself."—Christian Freeman, Boston.

Silver Plated Ware

In great variety of style and pattern, at R. E. Breed & Co.'s China store, No. 100 Wood street.

Grocers,

Spice dealers and druggists all sell Burnett's Standard flavoring extracts.
